Climbing Higher

One step at a time...you could climb high, high up, or fall far, far down... depending on this ladder and how you use it.

There are certain tips on ladder climbing that are essential. First, it must be sturdy...built with care trom quality materials. Second, it must be set on solid ground, not in "wishy-washy" sand or on wobbly rocks. Third, but very important, it never hurts to have someone dependable holding that ladder so you don't fall. (Of course, they will also be there if you do!)

And so it is with spiritual "climbing". We must have a sturdy faith set on solid foundation of the regular study of God's Word.

CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY OF

As you climb the steps to the door of God's house this Sabbath, you may feel safe and secure. In Psalms 91:14 is His promise. "Because he has loved Me, therefore I will deliver him; I will set him securely on high, because he has known My name."

By the way, always remember... never look down. You need not, for God is holding your ladder.

RIGHT WORDS & WRONG DEEDS August 16, 1992

Background Scripture: 2 Timothy 2:1-19. Devotional Reading:

Phillippians 1:12-18. Somewhere in the writing of Soren Kierkegaard there is a comment about a certain bishop. "Oh," says Theologian Kierkegaard, "his sermons are all right, I suppose, but soon God will call him to come home, and when he does, it will not be to preach, but to be judged." Ouch"! That hurts preachers where we live. To be sure, we know better; still, we tend to act as if our spoken words will make or break our relationship with God.

After all this time, we still have trouble getting it right: being a disciple of Jesus Christ has more to do with deedsthan it does with words. The writer of 2 Timothy says clearly, "charge them before the Lord to avoid disputing about words, which does no good, but only ruins the hearers" (2Tim. 2:14). How many Christians and their churches have we seen ruined by "disputing about words"? The epistle to Timothy goes on to say, "Avoid such godless chatter, for it will lead people into more andmore ungodliness: (2:16). THE RIGHT WORDS

This may sound strange, but "disputing about words" and "godless chatter," no matter what the religious context, does actually lead us "into more and more un-godliness." When we think we have the right words about God. it inflatesouregos and we become very proud of those words. So, although we are talking about God, we act very ungodly. Isn't that one of Jesus' criticisms about the Pharisees? They knew the right words, but they still

I'm not saying there's anything wrong with talking about God with words. We

The same is true with Jesus. None of our titles for Jesuscaptures the full meaning of him and I suspect that is why in the gospels he is so reluctant to accept the titles they wanted to give him. Even the term "Messiah" seemed to make him uneasy because he knew people's false expectations could lead them into the wrong ideas about him

What is important to the

The answer: by doing and even being the truth. If we do, "The Lord knows those who are his" (2:19) have to use words to communicate with each other. And certainly some words, when speaking about God and our faith, are better than others. But, what we must always remember is that all words are, at best, inadequate to capture the fullness and the depth of our encounter with God. WRONG/DEEDS writer of 2 Timothy is the way his readers live their lives. After admonishing them to "avoid disputing about words," he goes on to say: "Do your best to present yourself as one approved, a workman who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth" (2:15). How do we "rightly handle" the word of truth?

question most people ask "First of all, I think that movie is great," he says of the 1967 hit that starred Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway But my movie is different In the first five minutes of that movie, they were robbing a store. My scene opens when Bonnie Parker was 12 years old and wins the Dallas County spelling bee. It's the story of promise ahead of her winds up basically being in a suicidal

'I asked that originally when I got the script." admits Dana Ashbrook ("Twin Peaks"), who plays Clyde Barrow in the Fox version. "I'm not big on remakes. But the script was written really well. I liked the story, and it was dif-ferent from the first one."

Bonnie and Clyde: The True Story" tries to stick closer to the facts Clyde, clearly, was a lot more coldblooded than the 1967 movie indicated, and Bonnie may have been as well. The Barrow gang was responsible for 12 deaths, and most of its victims were lawmen

"Clyde was absolutely coldblooded, from historical record." says Hoffman. "There actually was really only hear say about Bonnie ever shooting anybody "

They would only rob small businesses like mom-and-pop stores." says Ashbrook They hit very few banks They were two young kids 20-year-old kids - running around knocking off stores."

Even our most lasting impression of the real Bonnie Parker (played in the Fox movie by Tracey Needham) isn't completely real. "The famous photograph of Bonnie with a cigar and machine gun was actually a photograph of her with a rose and a machine gun." says Hoffman "When the roll of film was found by the police they left it behind during a shoot-out the police gave it to a newspaper The newspaper, through some photo process, painted in a cigar over the rose to give the image of the gun moll and to further that mythology."

This movie emphasizes its subjects relative youth Clyde was 25 when they were killed in a police ambush, and Bonnie was 23, their crime spree last-ed four years. "The movie is about, really, two people who felt they had no options in their life for really different reasons." says Hoffman. "And they came together at this strange time in American history in a rural place that was

New TV film on Bonnie and Clyde falls short

BY FELICIA A. FEASTER

Shot on location in the parts of Texas Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow called home, "Bonnie and Clyde: The True Story" (Fox. Aug. 17) has the notorious pair just out for a good time maybe a little trigger-happy, but, oh. so in love. Dana Ashbrook ("Twin Peaks") stars as the sharply dressed Barrow, with a corn-pone accent and delivering dialogue with a bug-eyed inanity Sure Clyde is a country boy, but Ashbrook apparently researched his twang watching "Hee Haw." Tracey Needham ("Life Goes On"), while not as frightfully bad, is just lifeless in her portrayal of Bonnie, the restless Texas waitress swept up in Barrow's fast-talking ways. In this ver-sion, it's hard to know how that romance took hold: There is nary a trace of sexual steam deliver flat repartee about riding wild ponies. Even in the throes of passion, the pair are decidedly unpassionate, as is much of this reworked legend

SOAP SCOOP

'SB' struggles to find a strategy tor survival

BY CONNIE PASSALACQUA

You we heard the rumors.
"Santa Barbara" will be canceled in January; "Santa Barbara" will be canceled in July And yet, having just marked its eighth anniversa-ry. "SB" is still very much with s - struggling, but still here But what had been a funny and sophisticated soap has changed character radically in the past few months Although

you might recognize a few of the same faces, "SB" is such a different soap opera it could justifiably change its name The shows focus has switched from the wealthy Capwell family to the middle class Walkers, created by new head writer Pam Long. who. through many years of writing "Guiding Light," proved to be adept at creating passionate middle-class characters

Since it is the summer. Long has first focused on the younger members of the Walker family In the spotlight has been young B J (played by Sydney Penny), who masqueraded as a boy for her first romantically interested in her romantically interested in her much older journalism profes-sor. Warren Lockridge (played by Jack Wagner) Just recent-ly, she confessed that she was abused as a child by her "un-cle" Frank (played by Nicho-las Walker) a family friend las Walker). a family friend The scenes were extremely powerful, and Penny easily proved herself to be one of the best young actors on soaps.

But aside from the B.J.

abuse story. Long s new "SB" so far has proven to be just run-of-the-mill. We ve seen plots a million times be fore Young Rafe Castillo (played by Robert Fontaine), in love with Lily Blake (played by Paula Irvine), was tricked into marriage by hussy Lisa (played by Bridget Wilson). who lied when she told him that she was pregnant. And it looks likely that BJ will be revealed to be the biological daughter of Cruz Castillo (played by A Martinez), not "dad" Reese Walker (played by Forry Smith), through an in-discretion in Jodie's past Worst of all are Long's pallid attempts at comedy, a quality that had been "SB"'s hallmark Newlyweds Gina and Lionel Lockridge are the newly anointed character jest ers How sad it is to watch dis tinguished soap veterans Robin Mattson and Nicolas Coster do everything but stand on their heads looking for laughs' So far, only the B.J. story has been even remotely analo gous to Long s fine earlier work on "Texas" and "GL." But if she can make the rest of the show as interesting and dramatically intense, "SB" has a chance of survival

Woods is hypnotic in HBO's 'Citizen Cohn'

BY KIRK NICEWONGER

Even today, there are those who remember Roy Cohn as one of the greatest American patriots of the postwar era. But to most, he was one of the most outrageous scoundrels ever to slither from under the darker side of our national psyche "Citizen Cohn a docudrama premier ing Saturday. Aug. 22. on HBO, clearly holds the latter opinion, but it's like a mongoose with a cobra it can't help but he fascinated by its adversary Like the title character in Woody Allen's "Zelig." Cohn has a way of turning up in our mental newsreels of American traumas of the 50s. He was the prosecutor in the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg case which resulted in the first executions of US civilians for espionage on what their de fenders say was less than absolute evidence. Cohn went on to outmaneuver the young Robert Kennedy to become the chief counsel to Sen Joseph McCarthy's infamous Permanent Subcommittee on Investi-

James Woods

force behind McCarthy's Com munist witch hunts

stroyed. Cohn began a lucra tive private law practice, then was nearly disbarred on charges of bilking a client out of $100.000 Later in life, he became a bizarre boulevardier in New York City, appearing in chic nightspots with his glamgrous high-society friends

He was a man whose highest professed ideal was loyalty, but who left the flotsam of ruined allies and enemies alike in his wake. In the words of "Citizen Cohn." he was a "Jew who persecuted Jews, a gay who crucified gays, prac courts and stole from everyone." Clearly, this was not a man paralyzed by an excess of introspection

'Citizen Cohn" begins as Cohn (James Woods) lies in a hospital, dying of AIDS, but defiant and snarling to the end He is visited by the ghosts of those he has wronged, who lead him to review his life in a kind of psychotropic version of "A Christmas Carol " It's a device that is better suited to the stage than to the naturalism of film, but it serves the purpose well enough

In what is his best role in years. James Woods tears through "Citizen Cohn" like a mastiff on a meat wagon He bears little physical resemblance to the real Cohn, but he perfectly replicates Cohn s burp-gun speech patterns and relentless, malevolent energy The glitter in his Cohn seyes is either joy or rage - maybe, to Roy Cohn, it all came down to the same thing

Vendor Proceeds At Rest Stops Benefit Blind

When you buy a snack from a Maryland rest stop cending machine, you're doing more than satisfying a craving - you're helping the blind.

According to Governor William Donald Schaefer, all tunds collected from venting machinesat Maryland'shighway rest stops benefit blind vendors at more than 80 government facilities throughout Maryland.

The funds are administered by the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR) under the Maryland Department of Education.

Maryland has a commitment to developing programs that benefit its disabled and physically challenged citiz. ns," said Governor William Donald Schaefer. "The vending machine program is indicative of that commitment."
According to Hal Kassoff,

Administrator for the Maryland State Highway Admin-Istration (SHA), the program has netted approximately $325,000 for the blind in the past year.

The blind vendors program is in effect at 11 of the 12 SHA administered rest stops along Maryland interstate and primary highways. Between 60 and 70 vending machine dispensing snacks and other items are now used at the sites

Though SHA is not required to have vending machines or sell goods of any kind at the rest stops, we see this as an opportunity to help visually impaired citizens,"

The federal Randolph-Shepherd Act of 1935 permits states to establish a licensing authority for vending services, like cafeterias, in government buildings. In Maryland, that licensing agency is the DVR which coordinates the blind vendors

Address

A CRAFT FAIR IN THE PARK will be held egain this year at the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area, Saturday, August 15, from noon to 5 p.m. (weather permitting). Local crafters will diaplay and sall their handmade crafts in the day-use area, next to the concession building. A $4 per person gate see will be charged or persons may enter the area by boat and walk to the craft fair

"That's why many gov-ernment offices in Maryland ties, specifically, Howard. feature snack bars, concessions and cafeterias operated by the blind," said Bart Peeples of the DVR counties

However, it's the federal Kennely Act, Peeples ex-plained, which addresses who has the right to sell products at rest and recreation areas along federally aided high-

"Kennely says a state shall give priority to vending machines operated by the state licensing agency as established under Randolph-Shepherd. Since the DVR is the state licensing agency, we are able to place vending machines at the rest stops and collect the proceeds for the blind vendors program,"

The SHA has rest stops in eight of the state's 23 coun-

"I-95 sees a lot of business from these vending machines, but we're finding a fairly high rate of use from more remote locations such as Western Maryland," said Charles Adams, director of the State Highway Administration's Office of Environment De-

Vending machines were most recently installed at the Sideling Hill Exhibit Center in Washington County.

"Some of the vending contractors, through their contracts with DVR, have built vending shelters at the rest ereas. These shelters were designed by the SHA to be attractive and visually compatible with the rest ares,' Adams said.

So choose your celebration. Check the ideas shown here. Add a little, subtract a little to match your entertaining style. And let your friends celebrate your creativity!

A Cherished Way to Start the Tay

Honor the people you cherish most with breakfast in bed on a weekend morning

Start by creating a made to order breakfast tray Line a farge photo frame with a pretty Hallmark paper napkin that is protected by the frame's glass. Choose a pattern that's sure to please the honoree

Let special touches make this meal memorable. Lie ribbons to flatware and serve juice in a stemmed glass that features a bow on its stem. Carry the theme.

through by tying a folled napkin with a ribbon. Slip a poss into the bow and you're set!

Choose edibles that are easy to handle in bed. Toast English multims and serve with a small dish of preserves. Line a custard cup with a thin slice of ham break an egg into the cup and bake it until the volk is firm. This shirred egg can be slipped onto a plate and served warm. Add a favorite morning beverage and the morning paper, and your honoree may never get salad party that gathers good friends, good food and Let your friends help with this casual dinner party

They provide the salads, you provide bread, beverages and atmosphere. Suggest particular salads to guarantee a variety of textures, colors and flavors; a creamy pastasalad, potato salad, curried rice salad, crisp cucumbers and marinated mushrooms

Keep your serving table simple. Move a trailing houseplant to the center of the table. Intertwine a host of candles in different heights and colors among its vines Holders don't need to match - the variety will add interest to the table.

Don't take time to concoct tancy napkin folds. Instead. roll napkins loosely and slide into coordinating paper napkin rings available at your focal Halfmark store Serve peppermint tea or lemonade in pitchers pretty enough to stay at the table. Garnish with decorative ice. cubes made by placing a small slice of lemon or tiny mint leaf in each section of an ice cube tray. Fill tray halfway with water and freeze until turn. Add additional water to fill the tray completely and freeze again

Worried that ice cubes will dilute the flavor of the beverage? Iry freezing some of the beverage in ice cube trays and use the beverage cubes in place of ice cubes.

A wooden bread board is ideal for serving hearty. breads with this meal. For both safety and appearance. use a board that is reserved strictly for this purpose. Welcome your guests with mellow music that you've chosen with relaxation in mind. Jazz, rhythm and blues. and rock and roll are the most popular types of music played at parties, according to the entertaining experts at Hallmark. The same experts note that popular party. activities include listening to music, playing cards or board games or watching a movie on the VCR

Whatever your chosen activity, enjoy a few relaxing hours of anniable companionship before returning to the hustle and bustle of your husy week

Go for the gold

Don't let your Olympic spirit end with the summer games. Host a Go-for-the Gold party that brings Barcelona to your backyard.

Have guests dress suitably for an afternoon of Olympic style backyard games. Volleyball is easy to set up and allows almost any number to play. Stage water games in a backyard pool, or stake our a pface at the public pool for water tun Let your dining table capture the rich colors and designs of Spain by highlighting the warm blue and gold hues of Hallmark's Mediterranean Pottery party ware. Roll napkins loosely and slide into large gold curtain rings (available at most fabric stores). Attach gold-foil-wrapped candy medaltions to the rings.

Pile pears into a rustic basket in the center of your table for an edible centerpiece. Surround with short pillar candles in blue and gold. Scatter a handful of the candy medallions on the table covering to add an Olympic sparkle.

Need tips for typical Spanish fare Try serving a Mediterranean finger food called tapas, an appetizer served with aperitifs (alcoholic drinks served before a meal) due to the late dinner hour in Spain. Tiny tacos, ceviche in lettuce cups (scallops cured with lime juice) and cheese topped tortillas would be welcome treats If your guests have worked up a full-meal appente. serve paella, a saffron-shaded rice dish prepared with an assortment of seafoud. Its gold tones will earn gold-medal ratings from your guests!

Nifty Napkins
With just a told here and a twist there, you can utilitarian to unique. In fact, napkins can add a to any table setting

Try combining paper luncheon and dinner napkins in the Stand-Up napkin illustration. Use one solid and one print, or try coordinating prints for real

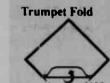

The "Butfet Fold" is one you will use again and again when you're serving a crowd. Try stacking the napkin-flatware combination in an open-sided basket for guest's ease at your buffet table. Serving something messy like harbecued ribs? Fold two napkins together and slip a prepackaged moist towelette into the fold with the flatware

Don't have time for fancy folds? Roll napkins loosely and slide into coordinating paper rings available at your local Hallmark store. Instant hospitality!

Other napkin ring options include tying a rolled napkin with raffia or ribbon. Tie a posy into the bow for a friendly

The Show Isn't Over ...
Let the magic of an outdoor musical linger longer by hosting a late-night dessen buffet for friends after the show is over. This is entertaining at its easiest, because all the preparations are completed hours before the party begins. When you get home, simply set out the desserts, boil water for tea and be ready to relax and enjoy the company of special friends Serve two or three light desserts buffet-style, along with herbal teas or flavored coffees. A light lemon chiffon pie is easy to prepare in advance and will wow your guests. Accompany it with elegant sugar cookies from your tavorite bakery and an assortment of the season's freshest fruit arranged on trays by your local grocer

Capture the mood of the night with the lavish use of candles on the serving and dining tables.

Create a brilliant centerpiece by setting rainbow-hued taper candles in florists' clay in a low, round container. Conceal the clay with a sparkling layer of salt, topped with a handful of confetti. Complement this colorful centerpiece with a Party Expressions partyware pattern from Hallmark for a dynamite look that's sure to draw rave reviews.

Add tlair to your dining table by pulling up corners of the table covering and pinning edges to form a small scallop. Tie on dried flowers and raffia for the finishing touches Carry the same look throughout your table setting by tying flowers and raffia on the backs of the chairs Set napkins and flatware at the dining table so guests need only carry a plate from the buffet table. Combine paper luncheon and dinner napkins in the "Stand-Up Fold" shown in the illustration above. Use one solid and one print, or try coordinating prints for real pizzazz. Float a tea light in a water-filled brandy snitter at each place setting to add shimmer to the evening. Votive candles will work too, just eliminate the water. Or put votive candles in pretty holders on tiny mirrors to add sparkle to individual place settings. Holders, candles and nurrors can go home with your guest as a reminder of this brilliant evening

Only $249,9001 - Believe It!

Previously owned by the Discalced Carmelite Fathers, this 53-acre site with 2,388 ft. of lake front was chosen for their ionastery because of its seclusion and natural beauty. This cove, on Meadow Mountain Run, is one of the quietest on Deep Creek Lake. The no-wake zone for boating makes this cove ideal for canoeing, fishing, and observing the numerous species of wildlife that habitat this area. #### Build Equity Two Ways!

What is home equity? Where does it come from and how is it determined? Does it grow at some measurable rate?

Websters New Collegiate Dictionary defines equity as 'the money value of a property in excess of claims or liens against it " Home equity, then, would be the present market value in dollars, less the amount owed against it, i.e., the principal balance of a mortgage For example, the day you purchase a home for $100,000, and borrow $80,000, your home equity would be $20,000. Five years later, if the home has increased in value to $140,000, and the mortgage balance has been paid down to $72,000, the equity would have grown to $68,000

Equity increases may come from two directions - a rise in the home's market value, and a decrease in the mortgage balance owed During a period of high inflation such as the early 1980s, home values rose in some areas by as much as 18-24 percent per

In other words, as long as the amount borrowed does not also increase, equity will rise as the market value of the home rises. When home prices fall, such as during . recessionary period, equity can "shrink."

Equity increases also occur as a result of decreasing mortgage balances Dunng the early years of a mortgage, little of the payment goes towards paying off the principalowed, thus equity increases slowly

During the latter years of a mortgage, as the balance is reduced by years of payments, much of the monthly payment is applied to principal. This causes a more rapid equity buildup

Combine nsing prices with debt reduction and equity can build quickly Your real estate agent can help determine your equity by providing an estimate of your home's current value

If you need information to help you solve a real estate puzzle, call us at 387-5303 We'll be happy to share our knowledge with you at no cost or obligation

House Approves Animal And Research Facilitles Protection Act

The Farm Animal and Research Facilities Protec tion Act (H.R. 2407) passed by voice vote in the House of Representatives last week with few changes to the original Farm Bureau sup ported bill introduced by kep. Charles Stenholm (D)

This is an example of Farm Bureau's capacity to achieve long term goals. said Richard Newpher, executive director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington "We are grateful to Mr. Stenholm for his leadership and to all of the state Farm Bureaus that worked so hard on this issue

The effort started four years ago with ideas for leg islation and seeking congressional members to support it. It was meant to be a way to slow down animal rights extremists from their terrorism of laboratories and farms

Stenholm said, "We must provide federal safeguards to the men and women who work in the research field and in this nation's food production system These industries are crucial to each and every one of us and, if we fail to act, we run the risk not only of lost cures and medical treatments, but also of a more costly food supply ' 'It will send a strong message to animal rights extremists that Congress will not put up with their activities, Newpher said. The bill had

The Judiciary Committee approved an amendment to the subcommittee version that lowered the economic threshold for the law to take effect from $50,000 in damages to $25,000 Farm Bureau said a $50,000 thresh old would have allowed devastating crimes to occur on farms and ranches without triggering federal jurisdic-

(AVMA). Dr. Boomer called on his colleagues to "change the image of food animal veterinary medicine - first in the minds of the veterinary profession itself, and then in the minds of the industries we serve. We need to be able to cost justify every medical intervention," he said. "The tood animal industry wants ideas, information, and motivation in addition to ser-

Several speakers on the AVMA program showed how to put Dr. Boomer's ideas into action by helping livestock producers solve serious problems that cost millions of dollars each year:

A total approach to horn fly control is necessary to deal with a persistent problem that costs cattle producers $730 million a year, according to John L. Riner, Ph.D., of Kansas City, Mo. Dr. Riner acknowledged that horn flies have developed widespread resistance to the popular pyrethroid-based

"We have developed our own problems by relying on single control strategies Livestock producers should be encouraged to take an integrated approach to horn fly control using insecticide ear tags along with oral larvicides, dust bags, back rubbers, and sprays. It is the fly that we treat but not kill that causes our future problems," Dr Riner said.

McCaw, D V M., Ph.D., Ra-leigh, N.C. "Atrophic rhinitis is a multifactorial disease complex which supports the axiom, 'Almost all pigs are infected, but only stressed pigs are diseased." he said

Control of environmental or "climatic" influences that cause stress are extremely important, according to Dr. McCaw. These influences include air space, ammonia levels, chilling, dust, humidity, hydrogen sulfide, too many pigs per

The measure (H.R 504-9), introduced by Rep. Rob-ert Matsui (D-Calif ), would change the collection point for the diesel fuel excise tax to the terminal level where refiners deliver fuel to distributors. The tax is currently collected at the retail

The measure is aimed at eliminating tax fraud in diesel sales. Besides changing the collection point, the legislation would mean dye would have to be added to the fuel to distinguish taxable and tax exempt diesel Farmers using diesel fuel for both on and off-road purposes thus would have to erect additional fuel storage facilities to accommodate dyed fuel In urging all House members to reject the diesel fuel bill, Richard Newpher, executive director of American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington office, said the cost for the fuel storage would average approximately $675 per farm 'Farmers and ranchers account for approximately $140 million of the federal taxes paid for diesel fuel. Therefore, this legislation would force them to shoulder a disproportionate burden of the enforcement cost because of construction costs for new fuel tanks,'

Newpher also said farm ers and ranchers could end up facing limited fuel choices or higher fuel prices if rural suppliers are forced to install additional storage

More Maryland Farms; Acreage Decreases

The number of farms in Maryland in 1992 is esti-mated at 15,600, up over one percent from the 15,400 farms in 1991. Total land in farms is 2,200,000 acres, down two percent from the 2,250,000 acres in farms last

The average farm size decreased from 146 acres per farm a year ago to 141 acres this year. The increase in number of farms in Maryland is due partially to an increase in specialty commodity farms and an increase in the number of small "farmettes"

The number of farms at the U.S. level in 1992 is estimated at 2.096 million, down less than one percent from 1991. Total land in farms is 980 million acres, down 2.7 million acres from last year. The rate of decline in number of farms and land in farm acreage slowed while the average farm size increased from 467 acres in 1991 to 468 in

The number of farms in the economic sales class between $1,000 and $9,999 increased from 1.003 million in 1991 to 1.006 million in 1992. The increase in this class is due partially to a return of city dwellers to suburban "farmettes" and to an increase in specialty commodity farms in several states. Those with sales in the $10,000-$99,999 group decreased from 775,100 to 763,200. The $100,000 and

I have not seen a lot of root damage from the rootworm this year. However, there is always the possibility that they were present in small populations which could explode on next year's corn crop. Within the next couple of weeks the adult beetle should be hatched. My advise would be for you to scout your fields two or three times to see if you can find any of the black and yellow beetles. If you don't find any, you can save yourself $12.00 to $14.00 an acre next year. If you find an average of one beetle per corn silk, you will need to apply a soil insecticide on the field if corn will be planted. If you have a high population, the best and most economical control is to rotate to a grass or legume crop Pesticide Sticks To Leaves, Not The Ground USDA is licensing the first starch-coated insecticide designed to stick to plant leaves, be eaten by pests, and not run off into the groundwater. #### Drownings On The Rise: Use Of PFDsAdvocated

The drowning of an 81 year-old Prince George's County man Tuesday in the Patuxent River brings the total number of drownings on Maryland's waters to 28 so far in 1992, exceeding last year's total of 26 drowningrelated fatalities, according to a release from the Department of Natural Resources This drowning brings the total number of water related fatalities to 37, in comparison to a yearly total of 58 in 1991

The Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) statistics show this year's water-related fatalities to exhibit decreased boating-related incidents, yet an increase in drownings. Last vear, there were 26 drownings and 32 boating related fatalities, as com nared with 28 drownings and 9 boating-related fatalities in the first seven months on 1992

On Maryland's waters in the month of July, there were 10 drownings and four boating-related fatalities, with seven of the 14 fatalities being children under the age of 14. This year's increase in drownings, totaling 10 in July, reveals 11 of the 37 water-related deaths have been children of an average age seven an a half

Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary, Torrey C. Brown, M.D. commented, "The Maryland Department of Natural Re sources and the Natural Re sources Police are constantly working toward making Maryland's waters safer Programs are being offered by the DNR to assist in avoiding such preventable acci-

Monitoring the increased number of drownings this year, particularly since the warm weather set in during July, Natural Resources Police (NRP) officials are emphasizing the use of PFDs and warning boaters and swimmers not to use alcohol while boating or swimming

The combination of drownig and boating accident-re lated deaths highlights many children are not wearing personal flotation devices (PFDs) life jackets. While Maryland law does not require vouths to wear PFDs while aboard pleasure boats, state law does demand enough life jackets must be carried on boats for each passenger adult. A typical, fatal boating accident on Maryland's waters looks like this in analysis: involves a white male, age 16-45; cruising in an open vessel, on a clear day, in calm water; without a life jacket; hetween noon and midnight; and on a Saturday or a Sunday in May, June, or July.

Superintendent of the Natural Resources Police Colonel Franklin I. Wood said statistics suggest chil-

Colonel Wood reminds boaters and swimmers alike, Drownings are avoidable accidents - PFDs save lives! It won't work if you don't

Parents and children should also be aware of the statewide PFD Panda Award for children seen wearing their PFD, or willing to try one on when spotted by NRP patrols. The NRP also sponsors the "Drowning is No Accident" program, a program designed to educate children and young adults in water safety, and the "PFD Loaner" program, a practice of lending boaters with aPFD when cited with a PFD violation, saving the boater a trip back to shore.

The NRP reminds boaters there is still time to take a safe boating course. For more information on any of the DNR's water safety pro grams, persons may call (410) 974-3987.

ment to the Maryland Abandoned Mine Reclamation Plan. The proposed Amendment is to acid mine drainage abatement and treatment measures in accordance with a 1990 Amendment to the Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (SMCRA)
The Maryland Bureau of Mines, an agency of the Department of Natural Resources, administers the State Abandoned Coal Mine Reclamation program using federal grant funds pro-vided under the SMCRA. The Maryland Abandoned Mine Reclamation Plan specifies the poli-cies and procedures under which the Bureau of Mines adinisters the State Abandoned Mine Reclamation program. Prior to 1990, federal policies limited the expenditures of abandoned mine reclamation grants correcting health and safety problems caused by abandonedmines. The 1990 Amendment to the SMCRA provides an opportunity to address water quality (acid mine drainage) problems caused by aban doned mines, by allowing states to deposit up to 10 percent of their grants in an interest-bear ing fund to be used to abate and treat acid mine drainage.

The proposed Amendment to Maryland's Abandoned Mine Reclamation Plan will qualify Maryland to deposit up to 10 percent of its abandoned mine reclamation grant money ($200,000 per year) in an interest bearing fund to be dedicated to abatement and treatment of acid mine drainage emanating from abandoned mines

Six young cellists and four violinists have been studying with Aldo Parisot (cello) and Erick Friedman (violin) this week in intensive master classes held at Garrett Community College and Will O' the Wisp. The classes will culminate in a competition for the musicians with one violinist and one cellist being chosen as winner and receiving $3,000 each. The winners will also perform with the 1992 Symphony at Deep Creek during the music festival, which begins next Wednesday

This year's festival will offer a variety of programs for all ages, according to an event organizer, including a soloist, and the county debut of Matthew Cathell, a 10year-old accomplished pia-

Mettiki Miners To Hold Union Vote August 28

Citing complaints about job security, work schedules attitude of supervisors, and retirement benefits, the employees of the Mettiki Coal Corporation will cast ballots next Friday, Aug. 28 to determine whether or not to join the United Mine Workers of America.

According to advertisements in area print media the local miners have called for a union vote not because of wages, but because, they allege, that Mettiki management offers no job security discharges workers without just cause, offers no benefits after retirement, and, prior to the announcement of the vote, forced miners to work nine to 10 hours per day instead of eight hours. They add that Mettiki offers no double time for Sunday labor and does not pay time and a half when miners work six straight days.
"There have been a num-

METTIKI IS OUR FUTURE.

VOTE NO AUGUST 28th

> Thanks, Charlie

An Important Vote...

While there is so much focus right now on the presidential election that is still 70-some days away, there is another vote that will be taken much sooner by a relatively small group of people that is of major significance to Garrett County

The employee of the Mettiki Coal Company will decide on August 28 whether or not they wish to be represented by the United Mine Workers of America. While some other mines in the area are staffed by union workers. Mettiki has remained non-union during its 15 years of operation

Discontent with wage and benefit packages is usually at the heart of management labor disputes, but this is apparently not the case with Mettiki. The issues of job security, work scheduling, and attitude of their supervisors are the major areas of complaint cited by the employees. In fact, the wages currently being received by the Mettiki workers are higher than those of most UMWA miners and about three times those of ther comparable jobs in Garrett County.

There is little doubt in our minds that some of the concerns raised by the employees are justifiable. It is obvious that something drove them to petition the National Labor Relations Board for this election.

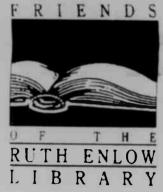

However, we also hope that the majority of them vote no on August 28. Our reasoning is that we believe that the Mettiki Corporation management has also recognized that some of the miners' concerns are legitimate and has taken significant steps to address them. Among those steps is the appointment of Charles Wesley as the new operations manager at the Mettiki mines. We hope the employees give this new management an opportunity and enough time to make the improvements that are apparently necessary

Was it the threat of bringing in the union that forced management to make some changes? Quite possibly. If so, then the union has indeed made a positive difference. But if the Mettiki miners actually oin the union, we fear it would be the beginning of a papid end of Mettiki Coal Company.

Will the same problems with management resume after the threat of the union is gone? We don't think io. While we have never met Mr. Wesley, he comes bere with a strong record in leadership and management. We would be shocked if he would renege on agreements that have been reached in the past several weeks. The miners can petition for another yote within one year anyway.

While some may believe this matter involves just a Iew hundred miners and their families, we beg to differ. The Mettiki Coal Company pumps over $60 million into the local economy each year in the form of laxes, wages, and operational and maintenance expenses If for some reason that money were suddenly yanked away, nearly every single resident of Garrett county would experience the sting of that loss.

With the start of the new school year fast approaching. thought this would be the best time to focus on the previous engoing and upcoming efforts of both the Library (and branches) and the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library to anrich the lives of the children in our community. This has been and continues to be accomplished through providng materials thooks, read alongs, and videos) and programs stimulate the use of these materials

The Library has always tried to keep up the children's Rook sections but budget cuts over the last few years has made that effort more difficult. Recognizing this, the Friends tarted a children's book fund drive in 1990 that resulted in $25,000 thanks to donations from individuals, businesses and organizations. Most recently, the Friends were the respicints of a charity fund raiser organized by Garrett ational Bank to which again many individuals, businesses and organizations contributed adding nearly $7,000 our book fund. The book selection committee chooses current new fiction, non-fiction, additional copies of classics indread alongs for those of preschool age through adolesence (The library also offers several parent resource books For reading aboud to children at different ages.)

An ongoing program for children at the main branch and most branches of the library is the preschool story hour which is held once a week. Also, in the summer a reading program is offered for school age children. Over the years, the Labrary along with the Friends and at times the Lateracy Council has sponsored several programs to stimu--late interest in stories, books and reading. Several years ago. Dr. Gail Herman gave a storytelling session at the main branch to the children Later, many local celebrities read aloud some of their favorite stories to children for a "Night among the Stars" program at the library in Oakland And, this past spring a "Dads and books" program was offered hich was a read-aloud story time for kids read by Dads in heremmunity

An upcoming event that the readers of this column will and want to miss is the presentation by best selling author Trelease on reading aloud to children to be held on Thursday August 27 at Garrett Community College Gymassum at 7pm. The Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library is is arbeading this program and has sought sponsorships from individuals, businesses, academic and community rgan zations in order to provide it free to the public clease ... the author of the best selling book The New Read A a Handbook and his talk centers on motivating kids to of the read. These activities will include orientation and/or training for administrators, teachers, instructional assistance, and other staff directly involved in the instructional programs in our

The first such activity will be a full-day workshop for new elementary principals Dr. Brenda McCartney, direc tor of elementary education, and Albert Ringer, assistant superintendent for instruction, will spend the full day reviewing the various duties expected of principals, the numerous policies and procedures used in administering a school, as well as the practical "nuts and bolts" of seeing to it that students and staff are adequately served.

Habitat Loses A Good Friend

On August 11, 1992, Garrett County Habitat for Humanity lost a good friend -- Charles Jacob "Jake" Powles When Habitat was established in Garrett County in 1984, the Habitat Board, Sister Cathy Arata, and the community were very enthusiastic about eliminating inadequate and unsafe houses from the County. To make this dream a possibility required construction skills and expertise as well as energy and spirit. Into the role of construction foreman stepped Jake Powles: Jake, who had had his own construction company for 15 years; Jake, who was accustomed to working with skilled masons, carpenters, roofers, electricians, plumbers, dry-wall installers.

It was a whole new ball game for Jake. He learned to work with lively volunteers, men and women, who offered their labor, but who in many cases were less skilled in construction. He showed consideration and respect for the families who were laboring on the building of the homes they would be buying. Under Jake's supervision three new homes were built in 1984 and five new homes in 1985. This was an amazing beginning for a new unit of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat will always by grateful for the work done by Jake Powles and by the many volunteers who have

The arrival of the refur-bished B-24 Liberator "All American" and B-17 Flying Fortress "Nine-O-Nine" at the Cumberland Airport next Monday will be a particularly special event to at least one Garrett County resident Irving Day, a resident of the Turkeyneck area of Deep Creek Lake, is among a relatively small group of World War II veterans who have donated the money necessary for the restoration of these aircraft, and he is primarily responsible for the visit of the bombers to Cumberland.

Day is a member of the Lead Crew of the "All American," an honorary position awarded those who have made large donations to the Collings Foundation, of Stow, Mass., for the restoration of these aircraft. His name and a number of others are listed on the side of the "All American." But he was also the member of the "real" crew of the U.S. Army Air Corps' "Werewolf/Princess O'Rourke," another B-24 that was shot down over Dummer Lake, Germany.

"I still have the rip cord from when I bailed out of the Werewolf that day," Day said. "My German captors took it from me twice during my captivity, but I was able to get it back both times."

Day spent 13 months as a prisoner of war at Stalag Luft 1 until Russian troops liberated the camp and the thousands of inmates eventually returned home.

The visit was arranged by Garrett County resident irving Day, who is pectal interest in the mighty World War II aircraft. Day, who is pictured above center (facing the camera) is among a group or veterans who have spearheaded the financing of the nustoration of the planes and, for his contribution, he is a member of the honorary "lead crew" of the All American that is listed on the side of the plane (below). Day was a bombardier on a similar B-24 that was shot down for the plane (below). Day parachuted into the hands of the German army and was a prisoner of war for 13 months. See story for details.

A companion B-24, the "Brown Noser," was shot down at almost the same time, but only the bombardier of that craft, 2/Lt. Philip Wescott, was able to bail out in time to survive. Immediately after Wescott, Day, and the other members of the "Werewolf" crew were captured, they were loaded into trucks, taken to the sites of three crashed planes, given shovels and stretchers, and ordered to exhume the bodies of the victims from the wreckage. Lt. Wescott, it is believed, had to assist in the recovery of his comrades' bodies, Day said.

Wescott returned home to New York after the war, married, and had three children, but died of cirrhosis at the age of 43, having never been able to accept the fact that he survived while the other nine members of his crew died in the crash at Dummer Lake.

"Phillip never spoke of that day and his fine sons regret that they were unable to share in his grief," Day

"You won't find the name of Lt. Wescott or the members of his crew on the side of the All American," Day explained, "nor the thousands of names of others so equally deserving. The names are inscribed to acknowledge donations to the restoration project, but all who served are represented by those named."

Day, who was a member of the 446th Bomb Group and 705th Bomb Squadron, added that all members of the Army Air Corps were volunteers.

The cost to reconstruct "All American" was over $1.3 million, even though much of the labor and materials were donated. It was named after a 461st Bomb Group, 15th Air Force plane which on a July 25, 1944, mission shot down 14 enemy fighters. On October 4, 1944, the original All-American was lost over Yugoslavia, however all of the crew sur-

The B-17 "Nine-O-Nine" was used by members of the 91st Bomb Group, 323rd Squadron, and flew 140 missions without having to abort and without any loss of crew. The plane was first assigned to combat duty on Feb. 25, 1944, and by April 1945, had made 18 trips over Berlin, had dropped 562,000 pounds of bombs, and had 21 engine changes.

Built by Douglas Aircraft, the bomber has been restored by Tom Reilly Vintage Aircraft in Florida to its 1944-45 design, complete with bombs (empty), guns, turrets, and radios.

Day said that the U.S. Navy also made good use of the B-24 in long-range and anti-submarine service.

The two bombers are expected to arrive at the Cumberland Airport late Monday afternoon, possibly around 4 p.m., from Dayton, Ohio. Among the media personnel and other civilians expected to be on the "All American" is none other than Day's son, Clark W Day, a professional photogra-pher who resides both in Gaithersburg and at Deep Creek Lake. In all probability, the bombers will fly over Garrett County sometime Monday afternoon enroute to Cumberland.

"My son is hoping to get some photographs of Deep Creek Lake, so hopefully a lot of Garrett County residents will get to see the bombers flying over the area

Monday," Day said The aircraft will be on display for the general public from Monday to Wednesday Hours will be until dark on Monday, from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, and from 8:30 a.m. until departure at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The next stop will be Frederick.

Tours will be available through both aircraft for a donation of $7 for adults and $3 for children.

Bill Armstrong, Cumberland Airport manager, said that additional parking spaces will be made available for the event.

Day noted that, if the Garrett County Airport had a runway that could accommodate the aircraft, they would have landed here instead of Cumberland

"When you stand upon the ramp at Cumberland Airport and first hear the distant sound of those mighty engines, then glimpse the plane, look at the older men around you," Day said. "You may observe that an unaeen lump in the throat has become a visible tear on the cheek, as memories flood out of control."

Members of the Garrett County Board of Education met recently and approved a new policy for the school system prohibiting the use of tobacco on school grounds They also were informed by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Jerome Ryscavage of the most recent budget cuts to the system and what programs they will affect, and they agreed to invite a speaker, Molly Kelly, to present a program on chastity to the county's seventh

Tobacco-Free Policy The board passed a new policy which will prohibit the sale and/or use of tobacco products in schools - and other buildings owned or leased by the public school system - during the regular school day. The policy also states that use of tobacco on other school grounds will be prohibited during the regular school day. The policy will go into effect on November 1.

The action on the policy followed some discussion and eighth graders next similar to last month's concerning the parameters of CUTE? HECK, YES, WE'RE CUTE! — And that's only the beginning because the nice woman who found us (would you believe abandoned?) along the Amish Road in Bittinger also says we're all "healthy, friendly, and happy" (We were, however, some scared and lonely pups before we were discovered.) The thing is, see, that we need homes and any or all of us may be adopted by calling Cynthia Knight at 245-4487 or 245-4147. The pups are approximately nine weeks old and are a mixed bread.

the policy. Board member Rodney Durst wanted to pass a total ban on tobacco use during all school activities, which would include events such as band shows, football games, and baseball games. Ryscavage again expressed his trepidation at trying to enforce such a law at public functions such as the sporting and band events, asserting that it would be difficult for all administrators to police the events and admonish offend-

Durst said the secondhand smoke issue "has to be treated as a real problem" and that the board should at least try to enforce a total ban. Beverly Murphy, board member, disagreed, stating that the total ban would make everyone a sheriff."

Ryscavage added that no real studies have been done to his knowledge to determine the true effect secondlose $14,000 of its original hand cigarette smoke has on $45,000. people in an open-air stadi-

This cut could indeed impact what we do with the school nurses. We have no specifics yet on how the program will be affected."

The school community centers had $18,000 last year, and will be cut to $6,000 this year.

"We will not have much a school's community program at all with this much of a cut," Ryscavage said. The program includes after school programs, open gyms, community rooms, and tutoring. It also involves the summer recreation programs, but Ryscavage explained that this section will be funded next summer. Finally, the superintendent told the board members that the food service will be reduced $16,000. He then stated that he feels there is no other alternative but to increase lunch prices by five cents. This would recover $11,600 of the $16,000. Currently, elementary lunches are $1.15; middle schools, $1.25; and high schools, $1.30.

Ryscavage's price increase suggestion was met with protest by Clark and board member Mikal Moomau. Both members felt that the finances of the entire food service program should first be completely examined before tacking on another five cents for the public to pay. Ryscavage stated that the decision would not be an easy one, but something they must seriously consider. The issue will be discussed at the September board meeting.

Speaker Invited
Molly Kelly, a national topic of chastity, will be speaking to the county's seventh and eighth graders on March 16, 1993. She was invited by the school board after some discussion and following a vote by the Health Advisory Committee. Clark, who is a member of the committee, explained to the board that of the 12 members of the advisory committee, six persons voted for the acceptance of Kelly while the remaining six declined to vote. She explained that the persons who abstained were mainly concerned that some of Kelly's facts were not accurate, in their view. She said that they did not vote against her, however, for fear they would project an image of indifference concerning ab-

"We all feel that abstinence is best, of course," Clark said. "But we just weren't certain that all of her facts were accurate and

Soccer Association Holds Clinic For

Coaches, Parents

The Mountaintop Soccer Association sponsored a coaching and parental development session for residents of Garrett County on Monday night at Southern Middle School. The event was conducted by Jay Hegeman, head coach of the Frostburg State University soccer team. The event was attended by 13 participants who found out the game requires much more skill to play than it looks from the sidelines.

"It looks so easy when you're standing there watching. Now, I have a lot more respect for what the kids go through on game day," stated

The primary function of the training was to focus on fundamentals. Local coaches were encouraged to work on this in their practices more than learning team tactics and special set plays. Once the rudiments have been mastered, the rest becomes mere application, Hegeman explained.

REGISTRATION

Inother Association news, registration for the fall season continues through the mail. All players from last season were sent applications direct to their homes. All players who want to participate in the upcoming season must register no later than August 29. Applications can still be obtained at Englander's, Arrowhead Grocery and Deli, Accident Garage, and Beachy Pharmacy in Grantsville.

A final registration session has been set for August 29 at the Southern Middle School. Representatives from MSA will be available from 1 to 4 p.m. to enroll anyone who has not registered by mail Association Secretary Dave Spirk said, "That will be the last date we can guarantee anyone will be assigned to a team. We may open enrollment beyond that date but, according to our regulations, a late fee must be assessed to cover late registrants. We are looking forward to growth at both ends of the league this fall with the addition of the Under-8, Under-6 age groupings. We hope to have enough people sign-up at the younger ages to have full teams and not simply the instructional play league of the past.

REFEREE CLINIC A clinic for anyone who vishes to become a certified referee has been scheduled for August 29 and 30. To certify, persone must attend the sessions and pass a test. This will run from 8a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Parents, coaches, and senior high students who wish to attend must call Lori Malcolm receptionist, at Bausch and Lomb. #### Mettiki Miners

Continued from Page A-1 operations at the local mine site. Wesley stated in an interview that he is in the process of "evaluating the entire operation, its productivity, scheduling, and management system."
When questioned about the job security issue, Wesley said, "There are a few hundred thousand unemployed or former UMWA miners who believed the UMWA could guarantee job security, which it can't. Active UMWA memberships were at their peak in the 1940s, surpassing 550,000 active UMWA miners. Since that time the Mine Workers have lost almost 100,000 mining jobs per decade. Today, the UMWA only represents less than 48,000 miners. That's certainly not guaranteed job

When asked what he planned to do to oppose the union, he said, "We are continuing to provide our employees with excellent wages and benefits...higher than those provided under the national UMWA agreement. We are also telling our employees of certain facts about the UMWA that the union itself is not telling them."

He explained that the union can levy special fees or assessments at any time, that dues may be higher than they claim, and that bargaining would be con-trolled not by Mettiki em-ployees, but by UMWA International President Rich Trumka in Washington, D.C. That's how the UMWA is set up," he said. "Trumka has the authority to call strikes without the authorization or approval of UMWA members and to discipline those who don't participate."

He added that the UMWA has a long history of violence, "which UMWA representatives obviously play down during organizing efforts'

Wesley said he believes the employees will choose to reject the UMWA "because they realize it's not in their best interest," adding, "Mettiki has a total wage, benefit, and bonus plan superior to those offered by the various UMWA contracts. We question whether our employees are willing to place their current compensation package on the negotiating table." Wesley said that Mettiki's average weekly wage and benefits are roughly three times as high as the average for other construction, manufacturing, and utility jobs available in Garrett County.

When asked what Mettiki management will do if the majority of employees vote for the union, he refused to say whether or not the local mining operation would be terminated. He said, "We don't think that will happen. but Mettiki will recognize its legal obligations if it occurs. We are concerned about the impact unionization would have on our ability to be a competitive low cost coal producer."

He said that the current coal market is "significantly overproduced" and that the industry began 1991 with a surplus of over 140 million tons of coal. "Under these stringent conditions, the only mines that are going to survive over the next few years are the lean ones low-cost, competitive, ar efficient operations. Third parties like the UMWA don't encourage productivity and efficiency," he said.

The pro-union advertise ments allege that, if and when the threat of a union is gone, conditions for employees that have been improved just since the vote was announced will deteriorate once again. However, some employees in opposition to the union are asking fellow workers to give the new management an oppo. tunity to prove itself.

Why not give the new man a chance?," stated one employee "Just one year, before we throw everything away. If things don't get any better, we can vote again just one year from now

Wesley gave his word that, if the union is rejected, there would be no punishment of employees who spearheaded the union movement at the Mettiki mines

The affect of the moratorium will be that any person desiring to build within the sewer service area will not be able to connect to the system unless a previous commitment has been purchased. and will be required to apply to the local environmental health department to determine suitability for on-site sewage disposal. The health considerations and requirements have become more stringent to assure that onsite systems do not become a problem that will need to be addressed by extension of public sewer in the future.

Before permits are issued, health authorities must determine if the site and soil conditions are suitable to insure proper sewage treatment, to protect groundwater, and to prevent runoff

There are no immediate plans to expand the sewer system to provide additional capacity to lift the moratorium, according to the com-

Deep Creek Lake State Park Sets Fall Ramp Hours

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources has announced the fall operating hours for the recreational facilities at Deep Creek I ike State Park

The .all hours have been changed somewhat as a result of park "isitors" suggestions, according to Paul Durham, recreation manager in particular, the boat ramp hours have been adjusted to accommodate morning fishermen

The operating hours at the park's boat ramp will be as follows: September 8 through October 31: Monday-Thursday, 7 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., Friday-Sunday, 6 am until 11 pm From November 1 through April 1. 1993 Nam to sunset weather permitting - persons should call park for daily ramp status

These hours represent a good compromise between the needs of the boating public and the fiscal and staffing constraints under which the park must operate. Durham said. "Ramping access is also provided at several private marina facilities on Deep Creek Lake " The campground at the park will remain open until November 2, with one loop open to accommodate campers It will re-open on November 27 to accommodate hunters who will be visiting Garrett County during the annual firearms deer season Checking station services will also be provided during the period.

Fees for the dayuse waterfront area will be collected on weekends during the month of September This fee is $2 per person for all park users Senior citizens will be admitted free of charge as will children in safety seats

Further information regarding the services and programs at the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area can be obtained by calling 387-5563

SPEAKS SATISFACTION, NOT PRIDE

BIBLE

August 23, 1992

Background Scripture: 2 Timothy 3:10 through

Devotional Reading:

2 Cornthians 6:10. At first glance, the writer of 2 Timothy seems to be rather lacking in humility: "Now you have observed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love, my steadfastness, my persecutions, my sufferings, what befell me at Antioch, at Iconium, and at Lystra...yet from them all the Lord rescued me" (2 Tim 3:10). And once again: have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness.

Those two passages are filled with a lot of "my's" and "I's." and the tone seems rather self-congratulatory. I would feel rather embarrassed to say to someone, "Look what I have accomplished and try to be like me." Yet, the more I have me. Tet, the more I have pondered these words, the more I have realized that the writer of this epistle is not on an ego trip. He believes that he had fulfilled the tasks that Cod gauss to him and he takes God gave to him and he takes great satisfaction in that knowledge. "Great satisfaction,"but not pride. He is not so much pointing at himself as through himself He knows his example is good because he emulated Jesus Christ. It is Christ whom he is exalting, not himself SATISFACTION, NOT given all the praise and thanks to God for what has been happening through him. He is satisfied in feeling that he has accomplished what God expected of him. He faces the possibility of death with the sense of not having left anything undone. That he could say, "I have fought the good fight," was because Christ helped him to fight it. That he could say, "I have finished the race," was an acknowledgement that Christ helped him do so. Nor was this any less true in his claim to have "kept the faith." Yes, he has done all of thesethings...but by the help of God! And his assurance that "Henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge will award to me on that day...," is dependent, not upon his merit, but Christ's faithful-not pride. In his letter he has

HONORS, PRIZES, AWARDS

Every once in a while I get a letter asking me to fill out a form giving biographical in-formation. I am asked to list my degrees of higher education, honors, prizes, awards, and special recognitions. Of course, the more one fills in on these lines, the more impressive the biography. But it occurs to me that, although it is of some satisfaction to list these items, none of them are even half so satisfying as the writer of 2 Timothy must have felt when he could write: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, trophies may be, they are not These are things that, like material possessions, we cannot take with us. They have been bestowed upon us by the world and are of impor-tance only in this world. The only lasting satisfaction we

Corbin just knew that 'Exposure' would hit

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

CBS's "Northern Exposure" is a show that has made its reputation by pushing the lines that define what can and cannot be done in a TV series.
'That's kind of rare, especially in television, because television is art by committee," says Barry Corbin, who plays former astronaut Maurice Minnifield on the Monday-night Alaska-based series

I think the viewer is willing to accept anything - if it's consistent. Our world has natural laws, which we have to abide by But we have a lot of room to play within those natural laws If we overstep the bounds and I think we almost did once then we hear about

That "once" was in the 1991 episode in which a duel was stopped at the last minute and the actors began addressing the camera. "I think we almost lost it there." Corbin says

Corbin was attracted to "Northern Exposure" because of its well-drawn characters "I liked Maurice because he had a lot of contradictions." says Corbin "He had personal problems, but he had vision He was a man of, in my opinion, the wrong kind of vision -he was talking about paving Alaska - but he had vision "

first premiered in 1990 as a limited-run summer series, few expected it to last But Corbin was optimistic "I always assume I m on a hit." he says. "I wouldn't do a show that I didn't think was good, because it's dangerous. The main thing that we have is our taste, and if we go against our taste, then we re commit-ting artistic suicide that good," he adds. "But I'm very careful about not doing a regular part in a series that's not that good. You don't want to be stuck in something that you hate. A lot of times people go. Well, I had no choice. But you always have a choice '

happens that I am making money, and it happens that I've made a living in this business for a long time - but if I was interested in just money, this is the last thing in the world that I'd choose to do," says Corbin. "Because there's absolute certainty that you're going to go through periods of time where you make absolutely no money

And needing money is rarely a good reason for taking an acting job. "If you've got bad writing, you're not going to save it." Corbin says. "I've tried to do that too much. Mediages writing you might be diocre writing, you might be able to make look better than it is. But if it stinks, it's going to stink no matter what. And it's going to take you down

SOAP SCOOP A new face for 'SB'; farewells on 'DOOL'

BY CONNIE PASSALACQUA

Sept. 1 is the day that NBC will announce whether or not it will cancel "Santa Barbara."

Oh, how tired we are of this soap opera behind the soap op-era! As of now, "SB" 's production team is planning for the future. To fill the heartthrob shoes of A Martinez (who leaves the soap this month to join the cast of "L.A. Law"), the show reportedly has brought in Charles Grant to play the role of Connor McCabe, an FBI agent who will come to town to investi-gate the death of child abuser Frank Goodman (played by Nicholas Walker), Grant, who used to go by the name Charles Flohe, made a sensation as Preacher Emerson on "The Edge of Night" in its last two years. With his piercing blue eyes and in the heat of his outh back in 1983, Flohe Grant was the closest thing we had ever seen to a young Elvis. Later, puzzlingly bloated and lacking a lot of his original sex appeal, he played Evan Bates on "Another World" for two years. Grant was briefly married to fellow soap comet Kim Delaney (who played Jenny on "All My Chil-dren"; she will star in the October miniseries "Lady Boss" along with her current husband, Joe Cortese).

And what of "SB"? Stay

It will reportedly get back to the core family, the

But first, there's an oldfashioned soap bloodletting (referred to in the soap business as "housecleaning"). First to go are that delightful seriocomic pair Roberta Leighton and Robert Mailhouse (who play Ginger and Brian). Next out is Alec Baldwin look-and-sound-alike Michael Easton (who plays Tanner) and Molly Shannon Sturges (who plays Molly). None of these charac-

Since "DOOL" 's fans are the loyalest of the loyal among daytime dramas, a huge out cry is expected

Joins Staff At Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty

Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty has announced the addition of its newest sales associate, Keith Roberts, who will specialize in land planning and develop-ment. His background in conservation has resulted in success in establishing conservation restrictions for steep slopes, wetlands, and stream fronts within subdivisions, according to a spokesperson for the company.

Roberts will be helping property owners evaluate the best use for a property, prepare plans to accomplish that use, procure the necessary tests and permits, and implement marketing stratewith the Land Planning Services Division of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. He successfully completed several contracts including enalysis of the proposed Maryland Wildlands Preservation System, formulating a response to the state lands consolidation effort recommended in Garrett County's Development Plan, performed a computerized inventory of upland natural ereas. Roberts also served as project coordinator for the Youghiogheny Wild River Program. He then joined the Natural Lands Trust, a pri-vately funded land conservation, planning, and management company. In 1989, Roberts began working for companies known more for placing land into residential use than for conserving it. However, in purchasing end developing tracts of land, Keith has noted his surprise at how effective that kind of project can be at protecting sensitive areas. Because purchasers agree, as a condition of sale, to honor conservation ease-ments, Roberts feels this process may be more effec-tive for land conservation than years of political hearings and controversial legislation, according to a spokes-

a ine-ripe formatoes, warm from the sun and heady with flavor, are at their peak during the summer. Capture peak-of-the-summer flavor this year by canming this season's abundance, and enjoy the luscious goodness of home grown tomatoes all year long!

Canning has never been easier or safer. With sun-ripened tomatoes in hand. Kerr* jars and lids, Real.emon* Lemon luice from Concentrate for acidification and a large pot for boiling water processing, you're all set! Because many of today's tomato varieties are lower in acid, bottled lemonjuice needs to be added to safely acidify tomatoes for canning. Bottled lemon juice is recommended because it's standardized to a consistent acid level, unlike fresh lemon juice. It's convenient, too, with no messy squeezing - just pour straight from the bottle.

fomatoes is one of the safety guidelines from the Umted recommended canning procedures in 1988. Longer processing times may also be a change from the procedures followed some years ago.

Before beginning, wash canning jars and lids well, then pour boiling water over the lids and let sit until ready to use (at least three minutes). Keep the jars hot too. Next peel and prepare tomatoes according to the recipe, and add bottled lemon juice to the jar for acidification. Finally, ladle tomatoes into the jar, and run a nonmetallic utensil down the inside of the jar to remove trapped air bubbles. Place on hot lids, screw bands on firmly and process as directed.

After processing, let jars cool for 12 to 24 hours at room temperature. Do not retighten bands after processing. During cooling, the lids will vacuum seal, curving down slightly in the center. The accompanying "ping" sound is music to the cook's ear. When cool, press center of the lid. If it does not move, the jars are safely sealed. Remove the screwhands and store the jars of tomatoes in a cool, dark and dry place.

For faster canning, consider packing whole or halved tomatoes in water, as directed. Tomatoes canned this way tend to hold their shape better, too. Also try canning tomatoes with basil for a savory base for sauces, casseroles and other recipes, or turn a bountiful harvest into spicy tomato juice or salsa. Occasionally, the liquid may separate from the tomatoes in canning, especially in juice, but the food is fine. Just shake or mix before serving. Everyone will enjoy the taste of summertime tomatoes in a jar!

Easy Steps to Canning Peeling: Adding acid, such as bottled lemon juice, to canned Wash tomatoes. Dip in boiling water until skins split (usually 30 to 60 seconds), then dip in cold water. #### OSHA Bill Would Place Unfair Burdens On Farm Employers

Proposed Occupational Safety and Health (OSHA) legislation would adversely affect farm employers, Farm Bureau testified before a House subcommittee last Doyle Rahjes, president of Kansas Farm Bureau, testified on behalf of the American Farm Bureau Federation in opposition to the Comprehensive Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1992 (H R. 3160).

He said agriculture producers will continue to strive to improve safety and health on farms and ranches, but a bill that requires them to hire lawyers and consultants for virtually everything they do, and has serious potential to put many producers in jail or out of business, is not the solution."

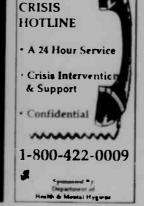

Several House panels have held hearings on OSHA reform legislation introduced by Rep William Ford (D-Mich ). The legislation has passed the House Education and Labor committee and is pending in Post Office and Civil Service and Small Business subcommittees. Sen. Ted Kennedy (I)-Mass.) introduced similar legislation in the Senate where it awaits a Labor Committee markup when Congress reconvenes in September

"If H.R 3160 is enacted. Title I of the bill would require the farm business to have three separately written safety and health programs," Rahjes said. "Unless the farmer can afford to become an OSHA regulations specialist, he will have to hire consultants to prepare a plan that will have to be tailored specifically (and expensively) to each 'work-

Rahjes said such a plan "must take into account protection of the seasonal employees or a farm labor contractor's employees, even if the farm employer does not know the employ-ees. This cost will then be compounded by training the regular employees plus the field labor employees at the full wage expense of the farm employer

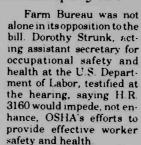

He pointed out that the farm employer also will have to establish a safety and health committee and to provide for election of employee safety and health representatives Payment would be required for employee attendance at committee meetings

"Under Title III of the bill, the farm labor employer will become liable under the general duty clause not only to his own regular employees, but also to the field labor employees and the employees of any contractors who do work on the farm, he said. "Under the law, the farm employer can be held hable for violations affecting those other workers even if they are not directly under his control

Heifer Project Is Working For Garrett County Families

The Hershbergers, Jerry, Mary Jo, and sons, Aaron and Jarrett, live in Grantsville. Last October they received a bred French Alpine goat through the Heifer Project International

Since its inception 50 years ago, the Heifer Project has provided animals to needy families throughout the world. Last fall, through a partnership with the Maryland Food Committee, the project made its way to Garrett County

The project allows approved families to receive a pregnant farm animal which will, after the offspring is born, provide its owners with milk. In the case of rabbits, meat is raised. With chickens, eggs and meat contribute to better nutrition. Other than properly caring for the animal, the family is obligated to pass on the first female offspring to another qualifying family. Thus, the gift keeps giving.

The Garrett County project began with four heifers, four goats and six families. Seven of the animals were impregnated, or thought to be, while the eighth, a goat was provided additional stud service as required.

The Hershbergers lovingly tended their female goat, or doe, all winter, but in February, there was no sign of a "kid on the way." "We attended the Garrett County Heifer Project International (HPI) meeting that month concerned. knowing we couldn't keep her indefinitely with no milk in sight," Mary Jo

Hershberger said. Six weeks later at noontime, Millie, the doe, went into labor. "Since Jarrett, a fourth grade student at Zion Academy, had been Millie's main care-giver, we quickly sent for him," Mrs. Hershberger reported Jarrett returned with his brother, Aaron, and his entire class to observe. Millie had triplets! What excitement (and embarrassment). Millie and the kids are doing great, and she is giving us five to six quarts of milk daily.

A revolving loan fund helped the HPI participants with start-up costs, until the animals began paying for their keep with milk -- as much as four gallons a day from each heifer, 11/2 gallons from the goats.

"Does it help? Oh my," said Mrs. Hershberger, whose family makes ends meet by taking boarders from nearby colleges. "When the students were here, we were going through a gallon a day -- that's $2 on a good day. So say, $60 to $70 a month. The cost of keeping Millie is far less, about $15."

"Obviously, knowledge of livestock was not the criteria by which we were selected to receive Millie. Only the need and the willingness to work and learn with others made us eligible. Six Garrett County families received bred heifers or dairy goats last fall, and are preparing to pass on their gifts'," Mrs. Hershberger added.

The Hershbergers, like the other families in Maryland's Heifer Project, may not seem needy by urban standards. The families live in well-kept houses with enough land for livestock. But their apparent comfort is deceptive, made possible only by the area's low cost of living. Money is tight, and each family needs every penny it can squeeze from its food budget. The chosen families also have a knack for innovation and entrepreneurship.

A STEP TOWARD SELF-SUFFICIENCY was provided to the Hershberger family, of Grantsville, by the Heifer Project International when the family qualified for a dairy animal. in this case Millie the goat, pictured with Jarrett Hershberger, below. This spring, Millie gave birth to triplets, two doe (female) kids and one buck (male) kid, being bottle fed by Jarrett, above. Millie is now providing the family with fresh, wholesome milk, and in return the family takes good care of her. Besides providing all the care Millie needs, the family is obligated by the Helfer Project o pass on the first female offspring to another qualifying family. Thus, the gift keeps givino. In this case, the largest female triplet was reserved for the project, and the family was given the option of how to place the other two kids. The doe kid was given to a West Virginia family to be a part of their home schooling program and to grow to provide them with offspring and milk. The buck kid was sold, for a pet, to a local youth. other families. Charlotte Smearman learned to make butter in a churn from her in-laws, and sells it for $3 a pound. Mary Jo Hershberger, who had no experience with farm animals before the Heifer Project, is teaching herself how to make cheese. She also worked out a barter system for hay.

"It's not the kind of thing that will make or break a family," said Mark Lancaster, who oversees the project for the Maryland Food Committee. "But it's the extra boost that will help them get started."

Heifer Project International began during the Spanish Civil War through the efforts of Dan West, an Indiana farmer who gave powdered milk to women and infants as part of the relief program. The effort seemed short-sighted to West, however, for it per-

Garrett County Extension Agent Irmgard Koscielniak says the project has received extensive support from local veterinarians. She says the project "gets the whole family involved. It keeps them busy, away from the TV, and teaches responsibility. It's one of the best programs I know of Each month, the "peer participants. Lancaster from the food committee, Teats and others who are donating their time - meet

"It is this commitment that has made the Garrett County Heifer Project successful. The families have diligently worked together solving problems and sharing information," Mrs. Hershberger says.

The peer council has also handled unexpected problems. The Smearmans' heifer, for example, could not be bred because of a heart murmur. Charlotte and her husband, David, sold the cow at auction and bought a Guernsey

But they were out the money they had spent on feed for the first heifer Neither the Heifer Project nor the Maryland Food Committee had discretionary funds to cover those costs. So the peer council decided to raffle off a pig to help the

The wet conditions are very favorable for the development of late blight on tomatoes and potatoes. I would recommend spraying a fungicide. There are several fungicide that will fight the blight. One of the most effective is Ridomil. Ridomil is available in the area

American Cancer Society's Advice

Dr. John Lazlo, senior vice president for research with the American Cancer Society, offered the following advice on consumption of pesticide-treated foods: "Fruits and vegetables are not only safe to eat, it's not safe not to eat them...the benefits are so great they vastly overshadow any risks posed by pesticides.

Western Maryland Ag Field Day You are invited to attend the Western Maryland Ag Field Day on September 10 at the Western Maryland Research and Educational Center located at Keedysville, south of Hagerstown. In the morning there will be Wagon Tours of Agricultural Research Plots featuring nutrient management, high tensile fencing and deer control, integrated pest management plots, biological control of weeds, perennial broadieaf weed control and high-yield wheat management.

Also, there will be continuous farm tillage and planting equipment demonstrations. You also can enjoy a hog roast lunch. The cost of the lunch is $1.75. For more details and a registration form, call my office at 334-1990. Alfalfa Notes

Now is the time for fall seeding of alfalfa. One of the biggest advantages of fall seeding is the absence of weed competition. Good fertility level and a high pH is necessary to establish the alfalfa for winter conditions.

*The potato leashopper is still active. Some farmers may think it's too late in the season to spray; however, the leafhopper can stop the growth of the alfalfa. You need a healthy actively growing plant to store up food for winter survival and early growth requirements in the spring. The noter tial economic losses of leaving the leafhopper alone far exceeds the cost of treatment.

 Should you take your third cutting within the next two weeks? If we knew exactly when the frosty weather was going to be here, it would make our decision easy. The experts say that alfalfa should have around four to six weeks recovery time after the last cutting before going into dormarcy. During that time alfaifa is storing up food in the roots. If you cut too late, the plants spend their energy on regrowth rather than storing energy. On the other, hand, I have seen several alfalfa fields that may have problems if the cutting is delayed until after dormancy. It's a tough decision! For Sale

If you're looking for some hay and corn to purchase, contact my office. Also, if you have field crops for sale, let my office know. We may be able to help you market the crops.

eryone benefits because smaller packaging means less solid waste

The process of reformulating an existing popular brand into a compact detergent is mostly a result of a fairly complex change in the manufacturing process Most conventional powders are formulated as a slurry then spray dried to yield low-density granules. Most compacta are also apray dried, however, conditions are adjusted to produce denser granules. Some compacts are dry mixed rather than spray dried, which also increases density. Some chemical changes, such as rebalancing a formulation's functional components, may also be required in addi tion, many conventional powders include processing aids, typically sulfates, that had to be eliminated to achieve the desired density

Higher price points re-flect the fact that more de tergent can be fit into a smaller package. In addition to their compact size, the packaging for most of these detergents include convenience features such s strong plastic carrying handles, tear tapes for easy. opening, reclosable lids to eliminate spilling, pour spouts, and even scoops to aid in measuring. To reap maximum benefits from these new detergents, The Soap and Detergent Association reminds consumers to read and follow label directions. Instead of the usual 1 to 11/2 cups, compacts often require as little as 1/4 to 1/2 cup of detergent per wash load.

There are exciting changes going on in the powdered laundry detergent market that are good for both consumers and the environment.

"Ultra" detergents are much more than familiar brand names with a fancy new adjective. With ultra detergents, also called super-concentrates or compacts, the same cleaning results can be achieved with smaller amounts. As a result, packaging is smaller and more compact. The average package for a regular detergent is 8" x 11" x 3"; for an ultra detergent, 7' x 6' x 3". Consumers benefit because these new packages are easier to carry and require less at-home storage space. Retailers benefit because smaller packages take up less shelf space. Most importantly, however, ev-

Quality vs. Quantity!

"We've had plenty of buyers call to see our home!" "We showed our home to seven buyers over the week-end!" "We don't need a real estate agent!"

Property owners who have chosen to sell their home "by owner" often make comments like these. They run their own ads, put a sign in the yard, and get lots of interest-ing phone calls They believe they will attract buyers A true "buyer" is an individual who is 1) committed to making a purchase in the immediate future, 2) is finan-cially qualified to complete that purchase, and 3) is knowledgeable about home prices as a result of comparing the various homes available

The "by owners" are likely to experience some disappointments in their quest for a "buyer." Here's why

It is difficult for property owners to determine the level of buying motivation during single showing of their home Learning the buyers' objectives, needs and timetable for making a purchase requires time. A real estate agent has the time - during nitial buyer interviews, in the car as homes are shown, and later as homes are reviewed in detail

To determine financial ability, the prospect must be asked: "What is your annual income? What are your debts? How much downpayment do you plan to invest?" During the short span of a single showing, it is difficult for a "by owner" to establish enough rapport to ask those most per-

Postal Tips For Rural Rt. Customers

Postal regulations require customers to provide and erect at their own expense rural mail boxes which meet official standards

With annual route inspections due for completion in the months of August and September, the Rural carriers El Workteam offers the following hints

1 Numbers must be on the side of the box as the carrier approaches (no less than 1 inch high), or on the door if boxes are grouped.

2. Boxes need to be firmly affixed to the support post. 3. All parts of the box must properly work; flag, door, etc Approach to your box should be filled and properly graded and kept unobstructed at all times. This will permit the carrier to deposit and collect mail without leaving the vehicle. Weeds should be cut, snow should be removed, trash should be placed away from box, etc.

5. Any questions should be discussed with the carrier or the postmaster. (The above was provided by the Tri-County El Workteam which is composed of postal carriers from Mineral. Hampshire, and Hardy counties, W.Va.)

GED Testing To Be Available Free To Older Citizens

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced a special offer of free GED testing for high school diplomas for all 50-year-old Marylanders. The offer is in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the General Educational Development(GED) program in Maryland

"If you are 50 years old and do not have a high school diploma, come and join the thousands of other Marylanders who have changed their lives for the better through the GED program," the Gov-ernor said. "You will benefit and so will all Marylanders."

State School Superintendent Nancy Grasmick said the GED program is "an excellent way for people of all ages to qualify for the education and training demanded of everyone in the work place today. It's never too late to receive a high school diploma and the benefits of a diploma."

Information on free testing for 50-year-olds is available by contacting the GED Office, Maryland State Department of Education, 200 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore, MD, or by calling (410) 333-2280

Eligible persons will be issued coupons to be used in lieu of the $18 first-time test ing fee. For those who have passed a part of the test, the $12 retest fee will be waived

Since the program began in 1943, the state's GED program has awarded diplomas to 209,684 persons who successfully completed the exams, Maryland program director Mary Ann Corley said The program has grown from its first year, when 27 GED diplomas were awarded, to last year, when 6,211 diplomas were awarded, she said Nationwide, more than 10 million adults have earned GED diplomas.

The average age of GED examinees is 25, though 149 people over the age of 50 took

The GED program offers adults who did not finish high school the opportunity to earn a diploma by taking and passing a series of standardized tests. Recipients of Maryland High School Diplomas through the GED program may qualify for better jobs, higher wages, and post-secondary education.

"Most adults who receive their high school diplomas through the GED program also experience a strong sense of personal accomplishment," Dr. Corley said. "The program is a big boost to the individual'sself-confidence as much as to his or her employmentopportunities."

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced Board of Public Works approval of a $200,000 grant to Garrett County for new construction of a multi-purpose senior center in the Grantsville area

In addition to the Gover nor, the Board of Public Works is comprised of Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and

The new facility will expand the available services to include on-site nutrition, health screening, continuing education, social recreation. transportation, arts and crafts, and Senior Information and Assistance," said Rosalie S. Abrams, director of the Maryland Office on Aging The new center will be located on Hershberger Lane in Grantsville. Once completed, the new facility will provide a variety of services and recreational opportunities that have not been possible at the current nutrition

The seniors in the Grantsville area presently have no senior center. They are currently being served by three nutrition sites, all of which are located in facilities that share space with unrelated activities These facilities provide no additional room for program enhancement and growth, the gover-

MINDLESS DESTRUCTION AT SHS - Vandals wreaked damage and destruction at the Southern High School football field early this week as they sprayed fire-extinguishing chemicals throughout the concession stand, battered downspouting, doors, and the scoreboard with a pick-ax. and shattered a dusk-to-dawn light at the neighboring Dennett Road School. The destruction apparently occurred sometime Monday night, following the field volunteers' first organizational meeting as well as a thorough cleaning of the concession stand, which is now coated with the fire-extinguishing dust. The press box was broken into, as the damaged knob attests to in the above photograph, and the downspouting was pulled and bent. According to investigating Sheriff's Deputy Randy Shaffer, the culprits entered the field by way of a concession stand window. The vandals did not steal anything. Shaffer said, but just caused general havoc in the entire area. Electrical damage was done to the public announcement system, as well as to the scoreboard. The cost of repairs will most likely be in the thousands. Shaffer said the sheriff's office has some leads in the case.

Not The Answer...

One of the major topics of the presidential campaign, and certainly one of the most significant concerns of millions of Americans, is the soaring cost of health care and health insurance in our nation. Both have simply become unaffordable for a large segment of our population.

A popular suggestion for "fixing" this situation is to implement a national health care system, whereby free health care would be guaranteed to each and every citizen and the government would pick up the tab Such a system is in use right now in Canada and England, for example

As wonderful as it may sound, there are many serious problems associated with blanket national health care, as things are far from rosy in Canada and England

Many people seem to forget that the primary funding source for government is taxes and, one way or another, health care that is subsidized by government is going to be paid for by the taxpayers. The average Canadian is currently paying 46 percent of his income in taxes, compared to around 30 percent for a U.S. worker, and health-care spending in Canada is growing faster than inflation, faster than its population, and faster than the country's gross national product. according to a physician who used to practice in Canada.

Because medical care is free, Canadians visit physicians' offices almost twice as often as Americans, which is obviously driving the cost, and taxes, higher. In order to cut costs, hospitals are closing beds and are unable to purchase and maintain the more sophisticated equipment. Thus, while the care may be free to the patient, he may have to wait many months, and often years, to have certain tests and surgical procedures. Sometimes the delay is fatal.

The incentive for hospitals to provide top quality care is being destroyed. Physicians are demoralized and leaving because of the lack of equipment and the fact that their patients must wait so long for what should he routine tests and treatment.

While the system in Canada is supposed to provide equality in health care, the wealthy, influential, and political citizens are apparently "buying" their way to the front of the line.

There is no question that major health care reform is necessary in the United States, and determining just what kind of reform and how to achieve it is extremely complicated. However, blanket national health care is not the answer

To the Editor

I am currently in train ing for the annual American Lung Association Deep Creek Lake Autumn Bike Tour, a fund-raising event in which bikers ride a total of 80 miles in two days. I have been riding around Garrett County for about a month now, and have been appalled by the obvious lack of understanding among motorists and bikers alike on the subject of traffic laws for bicycles. I would like to explain some things to the general public so that there might be fewer misunder standings between the two groups

While bikers are in traffic, according to the Mary land Motor Vehicle Administration, they are supposed rules and laws as motorists. except for the following exceptions: they are to wear a helmet, they are to use hand signals when turning, stopping, or slowing down, and they are to stay as far to the right as possible, within the boundaries of the traffic lane, to allow faster-moving motor vehicles to pass

Bicyclists are not allowed to ride on sidewalks

or along the berm, to weave their way between parked cars or cars in traffic waiting at a light: they are not to travel the wrong way on a one-way street, or in the oncoming lane. They are supposed to obey all traffic signals and signs, including stopping at stop signs and lights, whether there are any cars in the area or not. When a cyclist is turning left or stopped in traffic. he is to get in the proper lane and take a space as if he were in an automobile.

Accordingly, motorists are expected to treat cyclists asother motorists. They are to give them the same respect and right-of-way that due an automobile or motorcycle in the same situation. Many motorists seem to think that cyclists are supposed to move off of the road when there is a car coming up behind them This is a very dangerous practice: the cyclist could ose control of his bike if he is constantly swerving on and off the road, and this could lead to a real tragedy for all concerned. Furthermore, the sidewalks and berms are for pedestrians and for emergency stopping. It is very disconcerting to be walking along and have a silent bicycle zoom past at 30 miles per hour A bicycle may not have the same weight or mass as a car, but cyclist wanted to cover was the practice many drivers have of honking their horns at cyclists as they pass. This is often done with the best of intentions; the motorist is simply trying to alert the cyclist of his presence. This is fine if it is done from a good distance back although cyclists can almost always hear autos coming without any horn blowing But honking when you are right behind or beside a biker is extremely danger ous. Getting a sudden horn blast is very startling and can cause loss of control of an accident on the sidewalk

can cause serious injury to both the pedestrian and the speeds I hope this has cleared up any misunderstandings about this subject and that in the future motorists and cyclists can travel together without incident

To the Editor: Because of your past and current advocacy of corporate oppression, I sincerely doubt I will see this letter in print. Probably a victim of your 300-word limit as your excuse, but you shall see it anyway

As far as you know, like Chicken Little, this whole issue fell out of the sky and hit you on the head and now we have to listen to your squawking. The only thing more insufferable than your blind faith in the selfrighteous, self-serving Mettiki Corporation rhetoric, is your sleazy, under-handed, one-sided article you dared to print on August 20. This is a new low, even for you Where were you three months ago? Why weren't you interviewing Mettiki officials at that time to find out why they had so many disaffected em-ployees? Your collusion with Wesley, that you are trying to pass off as journalism, is odious in the least Wesley's half-truths are evident enough (more about that later), but you and your so called reporter's one-sided account is absolutely unforgivable Where are the statements from mine worker officials? Where are the comments from Mettiki employees who favor representation? Mr Editor, our rag has no credibility

Wesley's one fully correct

statement about the coal market being "significantly overproduced" reflects the declining number of all coal mining jobs, including nonunion. The mine worker is a victim of his own success Our productivity and efficiency are at an all-time high, as of 1989. More productive employees means you need fewer of them. That's our job security. Wesley will get his job security if this repre-sentation vote fails. Meet them. the new boss; same as the

In today's day and age we have a tendency to put a

Most people in the tri-state

The morning the news hit the paper. TV, and radio, our telephone began to ring off the hook. People we had never met, as well as many

Workers of America Local 2478 for 24 years and I am proud of it. I am sick and tired of your newspaper putting down our union. Why do you think Mettiki Coal pays their employees a little more money on the hour than the UMWA wages? I can answer that It is to keep the union out If we only had a few more unions in this scab town, maybe people would not have to work for starvation wages in this county. If it was not for the UMWA in this area Mettiki would not pay their employees $5.00 per hour. Mettiki employees vote YES on Friday the 28th.

Yours truly. Ronald Green Local 2478 UMWA

I wish to respond to a letter published in your newspaper last week regarding the unionization of the Mettiki Mine. Having worked in non-union mines, I speak from experience and am now a member of the United Mine Workers of America. The workers at the Mettiki Mine should not have to fear for their jobs with the upcoming union vote. Members of the United Mine Workers of America worked and fought hard to have fair and safe working conditions for all miners. When I worked in the non-union mines l witnessed workers being treated like property. experiencing verbal abuse and unsafe conditions

The Mapco Corporation has cut benefits to workers who have made them rich and sub-contracted jobs that should have been done by their own work force. The Mettiki miners deserve the right to respect and dignity on the job. These rights were made possible for us by our union brothers in the past and will continue for those who understand their importance Don't let these corporate executives continue to intimidate you, either way you'll lose. At least get the United Mine Workers of America on your side Preserve your rights as American citizens and become UMWA members Call their bluff

But there is a fly in the ointment which makes me so angry 1 would like to express my view on the subject.

Throughout the county are bins for collecting garbage. This is a great savings for the residents. All one is asked to do is dispose of their household wastes in these bins. There is no garbage fee and the bins are placed in areas where no homes are nearby. Also the bins are emptied regularly, and I've noticed workers who "clean up" the

But there are some slobs who abuse this service. I've seen contractors throw cement blocks, timbers, all sorts of trash in and around the areas.

There are other slobs who put mattresses, stoves, boards, couches, refrigerators, etc., in the bins. Why don't you have a place where those of us who see these people abuse the privilege can call and report them? We could take their license number and report them. A ew good fines would stop this greedy wasteful, uncaring practice Alover of Garrett County from the deep south.

To the Editor: Justice requires that a man must be proven guilty by a showing of the evidence and charges against him. In the case of John Allan Cosner, the prosecutor presented no evidence to ubstantiate its claims and state's witness was in complete accord with the defendant's testimony that the alleged act never happened. Yet, even with the mass of evidence in favor of John Allan Cosner, the Honorable Judge Thayer unjustifiably convicted this man due to and I quote, "I believe that, since you were in prison before, you may have done something like this," yet could not have possibly relied on the circumstantial evidence presented in this case (for

To the Editor:

there was none)!

I want to thank all those who contacted me in person or by telephone to comment on my previous two letters More than 50 people have spoken to me about them with all but five or six being unequivocally in agreement with my position.
To refresh memories

noted that not one penny of taxes paid (except consump tion/use taxes) by govern ment workers can pay for government services or reduce the national debt. Taxes paid by government workers are entirely give-backs or reductions in the costs of their services Period

I want to clarify some points that were not entirely understood. One, at no time did I question the need for government services. It is the amount and the delivery of government services I question Two, I want to be crystal clear that line personnel are not significant part of the problem in most cases

Don't Forget:

Exactly as I predicted last August, we are again faced with major revenue sharing cuts by Annapolis. Most of the cuts will be visible cuts which means cuts from areas where government workers meet or help the public as an everyday part of their job. Both government line workers and the public they meet will suffer

I think it is time for voters to pressure politicians to cut waste instead of cutting services. Most government waste is in the supervisory echelons. There are too many supervisors making too much money for too little personal accountability. It is time for all the good, fine people in positions of influence to forget their personal friends and the imily members of other influential people for whom they have acted as employment procurers. It is time for these good people to use a little bit of sense and make cuts where they will produce some real savings.

There are 12 positions at the Board of Education that would be consolidated into six or fewer positions in private industry. savings here would be $330,000 in salaries plus 15 percent or $50,000 in benefits saved each year This is just the Headquarters group. There are several administrative cuts that could be made in the schools as well. The cuts above have a better than even choice of improving the quality of education because it will free teachers to teach and none of these positions produces any proven effect on student learning.

I do not want to focus on the Board of Education, and note it here by name because it has the biggest call on our county's scarce resources. Other departments also have "mandated" positions and duties. There no legal mandate prohibiting the combination of several mandated positions in any department

There is however an informal mandate. between our local "best and brightest" who hate to see a friend or friend's daughter out of a good job. Mark my words here. The cuts will be to line personnel and to their supply line. The supervisors have enough influence to save their jobs Willard Hawkins ran the school system here out of two rooms at the courthouse and the trunk of his car, and the public was more satisfied with it. Retiring six $55,000 a year bureaucrats and consolidating their jobs with other existing jobs without increasing compensation saves the county about $400,000 a year counting benefits. They will have to lay off 20 line personnel to approach that savings. Which does the most good for the most voters A final note. Any bureaucrat who threatens to quit should be asked for his or her resignation on the spot. One of the greatest ever foisted on the public is the lie that government jobs need to pay iges similar to privat industry. The actual evidence is that less than one percent of government workers can hope to match their present pay and benefits within three years in the private sector Further evidence shows that it is the benefits, generous leave, and the "job for life" tradition rather than some mythical will to do good that brings the overwhelming majority into government work

To paraphrase a visionary, the times are changing We are responsible for the things we tolerate. It is time top tolerating inflated numbers of government workers in every area. W.L. Welch Gortner

PSI Ordered For Oakland Man In Sex Offense Case

A pre-sentence investiga-on was ordered for an Oakland man found guilty of a fourth-degree sex offense and battery by Judge Jack R Turney in Garrett County District Court proceedings last week.

Sherwood S. Solomon, 41, Oakland, was found guilty on both those counts. A third charge of second-degree rape was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office

Judge Turney ordered Solomon to stay in Garrett County during the investigation and ordered him to have no contact with the victim in the case or her children. He is also to report weekly to his probation officer. Bail was revised from $25,000 to 10% of $10,000.

The rape reportedly occurred on July 27. The victim stated that she was awakened by Solomon who was allegedly fondling her breasts and genitals. She stated that when she later exited the bathroom, Solomon pulled down her pants and forced her to have intercourse.

In other District Court news, Roger D. Pannell, 46. Oakland, was found guilty of two counts of assault, two counts of reckless endangerment, and one count of possessing a handgun in a on one yea vehicle. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered by a theft that occurred at The Auto Center in Friendsville in which two other persons were allegedly involved. One of those persons was Keith W. Campbell, Uniontown. Pa., for whom a bench warrant was also issued last week because he failed to appear in court as a witness Fike, who was employed at The Auto Center at the time of the crime, had initially reported the theft and said an unknown male took the money bag which contained $599.75.

Earl F. Dorsey, 36, Elk-ridge, was found guilty of endangering himself while intoxicated. He was handed a 90-day suspended jail sen-tence, fined $50, and placed on one year of unsupervised

WISHING WELL DEDICATED - Harold Hinebaugh was one of the most active members of the Crellin Improvement Association and worked hard to make sure his town's centennial celebration held this past weekend would be a resounding success. Sadly, Mr. Hinebaugh, who was 78, died suddenly just a few weeks prior to the celebration. As a memorial tribute to his life, the Association held a memorial service Friday evening during which they dedicated a new wishing well in Cannon Park in his memory. A granite marker at the base of the well notes his dedication and support for the town. Hinebaugh resided across from Cannon Park in a house that was once the office for the Preston Lumber and Coal Company. Despite his advancing age, he continued to take it upon himself to mow the grass in the park. He was a member of the Crellin United Brethren Church and was active in the Improvement Association since its founding some 35 years ago Among those present for the memorial service were other Association members, family, and friends. Pictured left to right above are: Herman Welch, Joy Foster, Ann Martin, Judy Martin, David LaRue, Betty Ellen Shaffer, CIA President Foster Lewis, Gene Smith, Fred Fulk, Marie Hinebaugh, widow of Harold. A 47-year-old Oakland man will serve five years in the Maryland Department of Corrections, as ordered by Judge Fred A. Tasker pleaded guilty to reckless endangerment and made an alford plea of guilty to assault and battery. Thayer accepted the first plea, but not the alford plea. He then ordered the five-year sentence. Tasker reportedly was involved in a domestic dispute on January 29 with his wife, Dawn Tasker, when he cut her throat with a large knife Police officers responded to the scene and reportedly discovered the victim to have a six-inch injury on her neck. She was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital at that time and was treated and released

In a separate case, Randy E. Burns, 23, Mtn. Lake Park, was sentenced to one year in the Garrett County Jail. He was previously found guilty by jury of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. A charge of possession of the illegal drug was merged with the first count. WISHING WELL DEDICATED - Harold Hinebaugh was one of the most active members of he Crellin Improvement Association and worked hard to make sure his town's centennial celebration held this past weekend would be a resounding success. Sadly, Mr. Hinebaugh, who was 78, died suddenly just a tew weeks prior to the celebration. As a memorial tribute to his life, the Association held a memorial service Friday evening during which they dedicated a new wishing well in Cannon Park in his memory. A granite marker at the base of the well notes his dedication and support for the town. Hinebaugh resided across from Cannon Park in a house that was once the office for the Preston Lumber and Coal Company. Despite his advancing age, he continued to take it upon himself to mow the grass in the park. He was a marker of the Crellin United Brethren

WISHING WELL DEDICATED - Harold Hinebaugh was one of the most active members of the Crellin improvement Association and worked hard to make sure his town's centennial celebration held this past weekend would be a resounding success. Sadly, Mr. Hinebaugh, who was 78, died suddenly just a few weeks prior to the celebration. As a memorial tribute to his life, the Association held a memorial service Friday evening during which they dedicated a new wishing well in Cannon Park in his memory. A granite marker at the base of the well notes his dedication and support for the town. Hinebaugh resided across from Cannon Park in a house that was once the office for the Preston Lumber and Coal Company, Despite his advancing age, he continued to take it upon himself to mow the grass in the park. He was a member of the Crellin United Brethren Church and was active in the improvement Association since its founding some 35 years ago Among those present for the memorial service were other Association members, family, and friends ed left to right above are: Herman Welch, Joy Foster, Ann Martin, Judy Martin, David LaRue, Betty Ellen Shaffer, CIA President Foster Lewis, Gene Smith, Fred Fulk, Marie Hinebaugh, widow of Harold. Ed Hinebaugh, his son, and Bob Lewis

"Individual and corporate sponsorships are an important part of that long-term growth that will continue to provide more opportunities for kids of all ages to participate," the spokesman said This past Tuesday, Bausch & Lombonce again went the extra mile in support of the Greater Oakland area when they donated two full size goals to the Association and Southern Garrett schools.

B&L manager Butch Sumpter commented, "We believe in this area and want to do our part to help provide opportunities for recreational and competitive soccer in Garrett County. I firmly believe that it's time for the School Board to think about offering this sport as a part of its offerings to the youth. Of course, we know what's happening financially in the schools, so alternative methods must be found to minimize costs of new programs When the Board is ready to move forward on these items I think there is enough support within the community to add the program at virtually no cost to the schools.

According to MSA President Carole Ann Lovett, the Association is also ready to do its part to help with this process. "We have set up a separate fund for use by the School Board when they are ready to add the program to the athletic offerings. "I don't know who to believe," concluded Braskey. Reports indicate that the governor is looking at optional health and welfare programs for the poor, and may even target parents of disabled children for services performed by the state. According to reports, Schaefer also indicated that local jurisdictions may be forced to raise their piggyback taxes in order to compensate for the loss.

Schaefer told the group that whole state agencies could be eliminated (or merged with other state agencies) and that state employees could lose their jobs.

In his letter, Finkel explained to Gov. Schaefer that

Governor William Donald

Schaefer last fall in an effort

PENELEC's decision to let its license with FERC expire might result in its current lease with DNR being jeopar-dized as well. Since DNR provides management, police, and safety services on the lake and to the surrounding state parks, property owners fear those services might not be provided at all in the future.

Currently, though, it is still a waiting game until official talks take place between the three entities, according to Finkel.

Election of Officers Also during the meeting, members of the DCLPOA held an annual election of officers, re-electing Jan Finkel as president. Also elected were first vice-president, Mike Belmonte; second vicepresident, Roger Titus; secretary, Frances Acton; and treasurer. Steven Jellinek

Owners Waiting

When Dunmyer was asked by an association member about the possibility of DNR purchasing land from PENELEC, he replied that the "state is willing to talk about easements or purchases but that all the Program Open Space funds for that purpose have been rescinded by the state and converted back to the general fund. A transfer of ownership, then, could only be accomplished through deed-ing or easements." He noted, however, that DNR would not be interested in taking over the dam in any case.

Dunmyer pointed out that while PENELEC owns the land underneath the lake and most of the buffer strip around it, the actual water in the lake is owned by the realm of water safety and management as it now does.

*INTRODUCING THE SHOP WHERE It's Forever Christmas Eve.

We call it The Holly & Ivv. You'll call it a very different kind of Christmas shop.

Walk from the heat and glare of midsummer into a cozy parlor that is brimming with the sights, sounds, and aromas of Christmas. In fact, it is Christmas Eve. At The Holly & Ivy, the clock is forever set at 11:15 pm, December 24th. Everything is in readiness for Santa's arrival...and yours.

Fragrant punch, cookies, the whisper of snowflakes at the window, and the reflected glow of wonderful things. Here you can browse at your leisure. If you are pleased with a decoration's effect in our parlor, you can easily imagine its place in your own. Our selection is as varied and many-splendored as the celebration of Christmas. The Holly & Ivy is a work of love. The three of us...Julia Lubis, Debbie Savage, and Nancy Frost...have spent months selecting the kinds of ornaments, decorations, and accessories we love to display in our own homes. The Holly & Ivy opens its door on Saturday, July 4th. So drop by one of these warm summer days...and spend Christmas Eve with us.

We're located in the lower level at The Fort in McHenry, next to Savage Frost. Open seven days a week, from 10am till 6pm. Call us at (301) 387-9111.

"Here I sit...all alone."

"Sure I'm a little worn, but who wouldn't be? My master read his morning paper here each day at sunrise. My mistress crooned lullables to her infants while cradled in my arms. And the children...it doesn't seem so long ago that they jumped in my lap and crawled on my back...whenever they got the chance." Now they're all gone...moving to a finer home. They only took the new furniture. They left me."

Some of us may consider forsaking the revered and trusted to search for novel methods for coping and for finding contentment. We need not. God is faithfully waiting to give our spirit rest and to hold us in His loving arms.

There is a special place for you in God's house...and as you leave, God says, "Take Me with you."

Background Scripture: Titus 2:7,8, 11-14, 3:1-8. Devotional Reading:

CHRISTIAN?

August 30, 1992

James 2:22-26 have read somewhere that Ghandi at one time in his life was very enamored of Jesus Christ and might have become a Christian if it had not been his observation that few Christians tried to emulate their Lord. What be rejected was not Christian teachings, but Christian--or perhaps more accurately: unchristian-behavior. He deeply respected Jesus Christ, but not many of those who claimed to be Christ's followers

Think about the Christians who have been influen-tial in your life. Which of these have seemed to make Christ come alive in their lives? Which of these have set an example for us to follow? Most of us can remember several people who have in some way for us incarnated Christ in some tangible way. Without some examples or models, none of us would likely be in the church today. For, although the gospel of Jesus Christ deals with ideas, it is the manifestation of those ideas in daily living that wins people to him.
NOT AN ELECTIVE

Few of us are enthusiastic about being examples or models for other Christians. While we acknowledge that exemplary lives are necessary, most of us would just as soon leave that to someone else. But we cannot: Christian witness is not an elective, but a prerequisite for anyone who would be a follower of Christ. So, when Paul says to Titus, "Show yourself in all respects a model of good deeds, and in your teaching show integrity, gravity and sound speech that cannot be censured...," he is speaking to us. too. Think for a moment: who are some of the people who might possibly be influenced for or against Christianity by the example you give? What kind of role model do you present to your family, your neighbors, your fellow workers? If someone else's Christianity depended upon the example of Christ that you manifest in your life, what kind of model are you presenting?

1 said, "If someone else's Christianity depended upon" you, but there is no "if" about it. A day never goes by that someone doesn't mark our behavior, our attitude, our way of life. We may not be aware that they are watching, but they are. The only way you can escape from influencing others, either for or against Christianity is to completely hide your Christian discipleship, perhaps even to deny that you are a follower of Christ And obviously, that is something we cannot do -

To be sure, Paul says that we are not saved by the example we give: "He saved shine forth in our lives.

COVER STORY

Dennis Miller is ready for Emmy's big night

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM Dennis Miller is co-hosting his first major awards show, along with Kirstie Alley ("Cheers") and Tim Allen ("Home Improvement"), on Sunday, Aug. 30, when the "44th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards" air on Fox But he is a longtime viewer "I'm like most Americans." he says. "We like black andwhite results, we're raised that way. I can't say that I watch the ACE awards (which honor excellence in cable television) each year, but I do watch the big ones." As a longtime award-show viewer, he's willing to prognosticate a bit. "It seems like there are certain shows that do business every year, 'L.A. Law' and 'Cheers' seem to win a lot," he says "But I guess the interesting addition this year is Roseanne (Roseanne Arnold of 'Roseanne') for the first time being nominated (for Lead Actress in a Comedy). That's the big award of the night. She's had the No. 1 or No. 2 show for a few years now, so her inclusion in the nominees is certainly warranted. We'll see how far they want to go

Although Miller has been on television for seven years, first as a regular on "Saturday Night Live," then as the host of the recently canceled "Dennis Miller Show," he did not take part in the Emmy vote. "I guess I'm a member," he says. "I would have to be after being on TV all these years But I've never seen a ballot or sat on a committee.

Emmy winners are chosen by members of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences who volunteer to attend screening sessions in which each nominee submits, depending on the category, either a selection of scenes or a single episode. Those who attend the screenings usually fewer than 100 people per category - then vote "Maybe that could lend some explanation to Roseanne's exclusion." says Miller "It seems like a process that might allow some things to fall through the cracks."

When we spoke to him, Miller's plans for the telecast weren't quite formed. "I'll comment on my cancellation upfront a couple of jokes about that," he says. "The rest of it I haven't written yet

But he promises that he won't shoo any winner off the stage even if one of them insists on thanking every member of his first-grade class. "You know, I always thought that was much ado about noth-ing." he says. "I for one feel that somebody who has won an award and has a platform to thank people that mean some-thing to them should have all the time they want. It's like baseball. It ends when it ends And if you don't want to watch it, you don't watch it, right?"

Roseann's Amold is a first-time nominee as Outstanding Lead Actrees in a Comady Series at the "44th Annual Primeting Emmy Awards," siring Sunday, Aug. 30, on Fox.

Warren Beatty's 'Reds'

comes to television BY FELICIA A. FEASTER

Warren Beatty's self-di-rected historical dra-ma "Reds" (ABC, Aug 30 and 31), based on avowed Communist John Reed's book "Ten Days That Shook the World," airs in two parts. Beatty stars as Reed, who traveled to Russia during the Bolshevik Revolution as a war correspondent and was actually elected to Russia's executive committee of the Comintern in 1920. But history is just a backdrop to nistory is just a backgrop to the real grist of this film a syrupy "Dr Zhivago"-type love affair between Reed and his longtime lover and companion, Louise Bryant (Diane Keaton). Beatty's film often overromanticized events, but it received lavish praise from critics and won Beatty an Oscar for Best Direction

Werren Beetty

• "Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken" (The Disney Channel. Aug. 30) makes its television debut on "The Magical World of Disney." The film has all the ingredients expected of a Disney feature: plucky girl hero, cross-country travel and plenty of animal talent. Gabrielle Anwar stars as a Depression-era Georgia girl who leaves her rural community for the unusual career pursuit of jumping 40 feet into a tank of water astride a horse as a "diving girl." Based on the real-life experiences of Atlantic City's Sonora Webster, who muledived in traveling stunt shows the film also stars Cliff Robertson · Often hilarious and occasionally scary, the PO.V. film "Louisiana Boys: Raised on Politics" (PBS, Aug. 31: check local listings) covers the history of notoriously ribald bayou politicians and the constituents who flavor a popularly perceived somber pastime with equal parts of entertain-ment. The film, directed by Paul Stekler, Andrew Kolker and Louis Alvarez, attempts many insights into why Louisianans would support a gover-nor like Earl Long, who cavorted with a stripper and spent time in mental institutions while in office, but the film is much more fun for its deliciously clever look at the vivid local color Music by Randy Newman, the Twisters and local musicians adds to the film's merriment. The archival footage of Louisiana crooks and heroes through the ages is fascinating, although it begins to seem a little frightrolls around. The tendency to tolerate or shrug away any indiscretion on the part of a polior even while holding office could be part of an uglier, po-tentially dangerous Louisiana political tradition, the film-makers suggest.

John Weslev Shipp has the best of both worlds

BY CONNIE PASSALACQUA

t couldn't have happened to a nicer guy John Wesley Shipp is back on daytime television playing a psychopath again' From now until well into the fall, Shipp is playing wife-beater Carter Jones on

"All My Children."
Shipp won two Daytime Emmys plaving psychopaths first as psycho supreme Doug-las Cummings on "As the

John Weeley Shipp

World Turns" and later for the short-term role of Martin on "Santa Barbara." But Shipp's real personality is much more akin to the character that introduced him to soap audiences, the likable Kelly Nelson on "Guiding Light "

"If you take a person who appears to be one way, and you cast him oppositely, then you can get interesting results." Shipp says "I find villains easier to play, because they re more active."

"AMC" 's Carter at first appeared to be charming. "They had to give him a lot of charm and humor to explain how Galen (played by Karen Person) had put up with him for so long." laughs Shipp, Galen and Carter had met and married in law school, but during their marriage he beat her. Galen turned him in, and now, after being imprisoned for five years. Carter is back for revenge on his ex-wife.

Why would Shipp, who for a prime-time television season (1990-91) starred as "The Flash," and who currently is playing a major role in the Tony Award-winning Broad way play "Dancing at Lugh-nasa," come back to soaps? I was in town doing the play, and 'All My Children' asked me," says a guy who genuinely lacks attitude. "In some ways, I feel I have the best of both worlds right now doing a highly visible role on daytime television and a fan-tastic, creative show at night." Shipp is often asked if it's difficult to do a daytime soap and a play simultaneously.

"And I say. 'At least I know I won't be working between 11 at night and 7 in the morning. When I was doing 'The Flash,' we would work all night long and then be expected to come in in the morning. It got to the point where I didn't know if it was dusk or dawn."

Although Shipp is proud of his prime-time work in the role of a muscular cartoon hero, he confesses the role was debilitating "Actually, the number and kind of hours weren't a trial. It was wearing that (muscle) suit that was difficult. When you put all of it together, it was overwhelming

But Shipp says he's ready to try prime time again, he will go back to California when his current commitments en

Local storyteller Dr. Gail Herman was recently invited to perform stories for The International Albert Schweitzer Symposium "Reverence for Life: Ethical Solutions to Environmental Problems" held in New York at the United Nations and St. Bartholomew's Church August 13-14. The Symposium addressed two major, global environmental issues: the conservation of biological di-versity and population growth. The Institute hopes to encourage moral and ethical commitments as exemplified by Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

As part of the Symposium's evening program at St. Bartholomew's Church, Herman narrated a story from Thailand called "The Freedom Bird." Explaining that the bird symbolized the persistence people need to save the environment, she told how the bird refused to stop speaking its mind against unnecessary environmental de-

Breakfast is a great learning tool!

Yet millions of children start the school day with enipty stomachs. The solution could be a simple one—the national School Breakfast Program

Breakfast boosters nationwide are working hard to increase awareness of school breakfast. "This program is a readily available resource that is greatly underutilized," says Doris Derehan, M.S., R.D., nationally recognized school breakfast advocate and president of Health Professions Training, a company that develops nutrition education programs.

The United States is the only major industrialized nation—as compared to France. Germany and Japan, for example—that does not ofter breakfast mevery school as a regular part of the school day "It is evident from a variety of studies that children who eat breakfast perform better in school," says Derelian.

Despite this research, the number of school breakfasts served, when compared to school lunches, is extremely low.

According to the American School Food Service Association (ASFSA), 42,000 schools currently provide 4.3 million children with a morning meal. That's a farcry from the 91,000 schools that provide 24.5 million children with lunch

The good news is that school breakfast participation has steadily increased over the past few years. One reason is the effort some school tood service directors are putting into making breakfast menus more appealing. A brown-bag breakfast featuring a freshly baked muftin, a piece of fruit and milk is one school's appealing answer to scheduling problems. Popular "kid toods" like breakfast tacos and burritos, cinnamon rolls, pancakes and waffles, and breakfast pizza are just a few of the newer menu items.

Breakfast program participation is expected to continue to grow as parents, teachers, health professionals, community and business leaders become more involved.

"Our organization's goal is to bring breakfast into every school that serves lunch," says Mary Ann Krickus, director of ASFSA's School Food Service Foundation, "We are moving toward 'universal school meals," a term meant to include both breakfast and lunch and to remove the stigma that school meals are only for disadvantaged children."

School breakfast advocates agree that, in part, this myth has dissuaded many children and parents of all income levels from participating in a school breakfast program or requesting that one be created in their school district. Other barriers include reluctance on the part of school administrators who cite a lack of cooking facilities, inadequate staffing or scheduling problems as reasons not to offer breakfast.

Yet for some children, school breakfast, in addition to assisting learning, could also play a major role in reducing a growing national problem—hunger. In March 1991, results of a ground breaking study by the Food Research and Action Center (FRAC) revealed that 5.5 million children in America under the age of 12 are hungry. That's one out of every eight children.

FRAC is a non-profit organization working in partnership with both national and local groups to end hunger in the United States.

"Our survey respondents said their primary reason for not eating breakfast was that their schools did not offer a breakfast program," says Michele Tingling-Clenimons, coordinator of FRAC's National School Breakfast Expansion Campaign, Tingling-Clemmons went on to explain that despite recent increases in participation, "fewer than 50% of the schools that offer lunch nationwide currently offer breakfast."

But low income students aren't the only ones who may be missing breakfast. Families of the '90s are different from those of the '50s, and mom isn't always in the kitchen when it's breakfast time. The latest demographics report that 93% of households in America with school-age children have either a single working parent or both parents working.

Time and energy, then, become problems in preparing breakfast. And still, there are those children who are just not hungry first thing in the morning, or prefer to sleep until the last minute. "School breakfast is an easy solution to the many reasons why children are not eating breakfast," says Marianne Neifert, M.D. Popularly referred to as "Dr. Mom," Neifert is a Denver pediatrician, author of Dr. Mom's Parenting Guide, columnist for McCall's magazine and nationally recognized

The school breakfast movement is a learning experience for everyone involved. Parents are learning there's help in the morning. Schools are learning that the advantages of serving breakfast far outweigh the disadvantages. And, most importantly, children are learning and performing better because they start the day with a nutritious meal."

Berry Good Wafflewich

- 2 (4-inch) waffles, toasted
- 1 ounce (about 2 tablespoons) cream cheese, softened
- 1 to 2 tablespoons strawberry preserves or jelly
- 1 tablespoon granola (optional)

Spread one waffle with half of the cream cheese; top with preserves and granola. Spread second waffle with remaining cream cheese; close sandwich. With sharp serrated knife, cut into quarters to serve.

JUST THE FACTS, PLEASE

 Based on the number of school lunches versus school breakfasts served, there is a potential for an additional 20 million children to participate in school breakfast.

The HODAP program helps local nonprofit housing agencies address the housing needs of Maryland's lowincome families by providing pre-construction funding for start-up development," said Governor Schaefer. "This program fills a real need by helping to provide some famihes with much needed afford able housing."

The HODAP program, established in 1986 by the General Assembly, supplies funds to help pay for specific administrative pre-construction expenses associated with the development or rehabilitation of low-income housing projects. HODAP funds may be used for planning and preconstruction expenses, such as architectural design, site planning and engineering studies or surveys. Funds can also be used to hire consultants and train staff. Only non-profit housing corporations are eligible to apply, with the maximum grant being $20,000. Priority is given to projects serving the largest number of low-income people. Grants are awarded on a competitive basis and run for twelve months. HODAPfunds must be matched on a dollar-fordollar basis through local or other non-state sources of

NOTICE OF DETERMINATION OF

NO SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT GRANTSVILLE WATER SUPPLY PROJECT

NOTICE is hereby given that the Farmers' Home Administration has made a determination of no significant environmental impact in regard to the proposed water supply improvement project for the Town of Grantsville. The project is located 1½ miles west of the Town on Alternate Route 40 at the site of the Town's filter plant. The project will consist of the construction of a 500,000 gallon below-ground water storage tank at the plant site and drilling water supply wells in that vicinity but far enough from existing wells to prevent interference. A supply line will connect the well to the filter plant. The objective of the project is to provide an adequate and reliable water supply for the Town even during an extended drought. The application for federal assistance and the Environmental Assessment are available for review at the Farmers' Home Administration, District Office, 198 Thomas Johnson Drive, Suite 200, Frederick, MD 21701. Any person interested in commenting on the application or the proposal's feasibility and the alternatives to it may do so by providing such comments to the Farmers' Home Administration within 15 days following the date of this publication.

GAO Reports On The Safety Of Dairy Products Lacks Evidence

Two recent General Accounting Office reports raised unwarranted consumer feers about the safety of the nation's milk supply but failed to provide direct evidence to support their claims, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation

The reports falsely attacked the nation smilk inapection and testing programs as being inadequate in detecting drug residues While raising questions about the current system. neither report proved that any residue problems have occurred as a result of it. according to Dr Ken Olson, director of AFBF's dairy department

The first GAO report was delivered during a recent House government operations subcommittee hear ing It criticized the Food and Drug Administration for a number of perceived shortcomings in the milk inspection system

Olson said the report indicated that only a small number of drugs that "might be used" in dairy cattle were routinely tested for under the Pasteurized Milk Ordinance (PMO) For example, he said the report falsely concluded that extra-label drug-use -- when drugs are administered by veterinarians on an emergency basis in ways not listed on a product's label -- was rou-

the hearing that the agency has, in the past few years, increased its monitoring efforts and has developed additional methods for screening and confirmation of drug

"Milk is one of FDA's most heavily regulated and monitored food commodities," Guest said

As Olson pointed out, milk is "the only food product that requires producers to be licensed before they can sell it." In addition to present regulation, the dairy industry has instituted voluntary programs to assure the purity of milk, and most milk plants pay quality premiums to producers whose herds require less treatment of mastitis Also in place is an on-farm quality assurance program, which instructs producers and veterinarians on the proper use of animal drugs and herd health manage

The industry also supported provisions requiring the testing of each tanker load of milk for penicillin and other residues the FDA considers a human health

Rep. Steve Gunderson at the (R-Wis.), testifying at the hearing, praised the industry's efforts to improve herd health, reduce the need for medications and further ensure dairy product safety. "It would be extremely unfortunate if consumers are led to believe that milk products are tainted," he said

The second report called on FDA to halt sales of milk and beef from research animals receiving the bovine somatotropin (BST) or bovine growth hormone.

According to Olson, that study relied on diluted logic to urge FDA to withhold commercial approval of BST because of increased con-cerns about "indirect" health effects on humans The report raises "no new concerna or presents no new information about the product," but rather attempts to use food safety fears to further delay the approval process, he said

FDA is the only organization with all of the research information on BST, and the agency since 1986 has been evaluating the product's effectiveness and determine whether it poses any health impacts on treated animals, according to Olson

"In the areas of human food safety. animal safety and drug effectiveness, the study found that FDA's review had met all established guidelines and that BST itself posed no human health threat," Olson said. "The report, however, raised fears that cows receiving BST are more likely to have mastitis, which 'could pos sibly lead to the increased use of antibiotics The report then said that increased treatment 'might raise the level of antibiotics found in milk and beef, that may not be detected by the current inspection program, and thus could pose a problem for consumers

Milk from cows receiving BST has been sold commercially since medical and scientific experts have deter mined it poaes no human health concerns. According to Olson, the GAO report implies that substantial volumes of milk from experimental cows may be on the market now, when actually there is very little, if any, BST milk on the market since most experiments have been completed

The CIBA GEIGY Corporation, the primary manufac turer of Atrazine, has proposed several voluntary label changes for products containing Atrazine. EPA has accepted most of the proposed changes. Some of the new label changes

Large colonies are found at the edges of woodland and around wet springs. Just this past week, a local farmer lost four cows, which could have possibly been poisoned by the fern. If a pasture is grazed down and grass is short, there is more of a likelihood that animals will eat the fern. My advice would be to kill off the fern. The herbicides Ally or Roundup will do the job. #### Maryland Agriculture Secretary Attends Farm Meeting In Canada

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker represented the southern United States at an agriculture accord meeting in Alberta, Canada, August 13. The National Association of State Departments of Agriculture sent Walker to the meeting to discuss important trade is-

"It was extremely beneficial to exchange information with ministers and commissioners of agriculture on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the North American Free Trade Agreement. I was particularly pleased that we had an opportunity to discuss the challenge for agriculture and the food industry presented by the break up of the Soviet Union. We must aggressively pursue economic opportunities in this part of the world," Walker said. "I am also grateful to be working for Governor William derstands the importance of international trade," said

Walker heads a task force for the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture which has been examining the extent of U.S. efforts to assist the people of the former Soviet Union. He also chairs a Maryland business advisory group that is discussing ways to take advantage of Maryland's extensive conways to take advantage tacts to better promote U.S. and Maryland interests in Russia and the other emerging democracies.

Maryland Peaches Are In Good Supply

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has armounced that Maryland's 1992 peach crop is now coming to market with an abundance of high quality, super tasting fruit. According to a survey done by the Maryland Depart-ment of Agriculture peaches should be in good supply.

Growers report good yields and very good qual-ity despite hail scares and late frost scares earlier in the season. The crop is somewhat behind schedule meaning that consumers still have plenty of time to buy and enjoy local peaches. "Local peaches are one of the real joys of Maryland and this year's extended season gives all Marylanders a chance to savor this delicacy," said Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer.

Estimates of the crop's ize prepared by the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service peg this year's Maryland production at 12 million pounds.

The best places to find Maryland-grown peaches are at orchards which sell directly to customers, roadside stands and farmers' markets. Peaches can be enjoyed fresh and freeze very well with a minimum of preparation.

RJR Gives Grant To Maryland Department Of Ag

Maryland Secretary of griculture Robert L Walker has armounced that the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company has given a grant of $2,500 to the Maryland Department of Agriculture

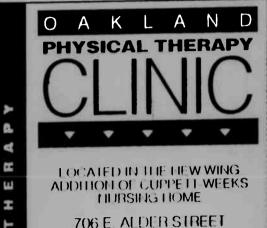

The department is grateful for this funding which helps not only the tobacco industry, but also helps support our agriculture education programs in elementary schools and our international exchange pro-gram with Russia," Walker said.

"In these tough economic times of reduced state funding, the RJR grant is espe cially critical and important," said Walker

The Maryland Department of Agriculture has received this grant for the past four years.

Further clouding the issue was a statement by EPA Admin-istrator William Reilly to reporters during the Republican convention in Houston that the Bush administration is committed to expanding use of ethanol, "but we don't need to relax the Clean Air Act to do that." Farm Bureau and other agricultural groups have strongly supported giving ethanol a more prominent role in the reformulated gasoline program.
